GIRL ENDS LIFE ON EVE OF WEDDING

Springfield, Oct. 30.—On the eve of her marriage to Edward J. Harrington of No. 65 Essex street, pretty, bobbed-haired Florence LaPan, 26, ccommitted suicide in her apartment at No. 685 State street today. Barefooted and clad in underwear and a kimona, the girl sat down before a gas hot plate and turned on all four burners. She left four notes, one to her sweetheart and the others to relatives.

SNOW FALLS IN CENTRAL MASSACHUSETTS

The second real snowfall of the season began in Springfield and Worcester today. Snow fell earlier in the month, but today's fall began in businesslike fashion, Worcester County was visited by a snowstorm, too. More than an inch had fallen in the north county towns, but less than half an inch had fallen in the city.

FRANCE TO ASK LOWER DEBT TERMS

Paris, Oct. 30 (I.N.S.).—France's next debt proposal to the United States is very apt to be below that which M. Caillaux last made during the Washington negotiations, it was stated today. The new Painleve Cabinet, face to face with a financial crisis at home, is not expected to extend itself in an effort to pay the United States.

HELD IN R. I. BAR EXAM "FRAUD"

Providence, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Alleged irregularities in a recent examination of candidates for admission to the bar of Rhode Island were disclosed in Superior Court today when Judge J. Jerome Hahn held Arthur D'Agnenica, one of those who passed the examination, under $1,000 surety and ordered the Grand Jury convened on Nov. 9.

MITCHELL WOULD DEFY COOLIDGE TO HIS FACE

Washington, Oct. 30. (I.N.S.)—Representative Frank R. Reid, (R) Illinois, announced today he would probably demand a subpoena be issued for President Coolidge as a witness in Colonel "Billy" Mitchell's court martial. As Mitchell's chief counsel, Reid declared the President had been named by the War Department as the Flying Colonel's accuser and prosecutor.

Washington, Oct., 30. (A.P.)—Having lost every preliminary effort to halt the court martial proceedings against him, Colonel William Mitchell today pleaded not guilty of the charges against him and informed the court he was ready to stand trial. His plea was entered and the trial actually got under way after the court had rejected the last of a long list of objections based on the failure of the prosecution to provide a "bill of particulars" of the charges against Colonel Mitchell.

DOESN'T DENY CHARGE.

The air officer stood smiling to answer the charge. He said "Not guilty" as each of the charges and specifications was called in turn by the prosecuting officer.

The plea did not deny the accuracy of the charge that the colonel had, in his San Antonio statement, accused his superiors of criminal and almost treasonable conduct in admin-

STOCKS AGAIN JUMP AS SPECULATORS BUY

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Speculators for the advance regained control of the price movement in today's stock market, carrying the general list to higher ground under the leadership of motors and specialties.

Selling pressure, which was particularly acute just before the close yesterday, subsided when it became apparent that the enormous volume in stock trading had not affected the credit situation, the weekly statement of the Federal Reserve Bank actually showing an increase in the reserve ratio. Public participation was again on a broad scale with trading maintained at a pace in excess of 2,000,000 shares a day.

Publication of additional favorable earnings statements with indications that a number of industrial companies will make a better showing in the fourth quarter than they did in the third, and prospects of another series of extra or increased dividend announcements next week helped to maintain bullish enthusiasm.

Atlantic Coast Line crossed 211⅝ for a gain of more than 10 points. Loose-Wiles Biscuit jumped about 7 points and Brown Shoe, International Business Machine and Jordan Motors extended their early gains to 4 points or more.

WOMEN MIX PASTOR IN PRISON PROBE; KU KLUXERS' HAND BARED

Thomaston, Me., Oct. 30.—Some of the gravest charges of moral laxity being investigated by Governor Brewster, his council and the Prison Commission, were made by the Rev. Percy J. Clifford, but the board was surprised today when three women prisoners made charges against the deposed prison chaplain.

First actual connecting of the klan with the scandal came today in the probe in an admittance by Joseph A. Paquin, prison clerk, under cross-examination.

Paquin admitted to Attorney Pattangall, for Warden Eaton, that two klansmen accompanied him last Sunday night to the office of Governor Brewster in Augusta when the clerk conferred with the Governor about the case.

The clerk also refused to deny,

COURT SAVES STATE MILLIONS IN TAXES

Millions of dollars in excise taxes collected by the State of Massachusetts from foreign business corporations doing business in this State were saved the Commonwealth by a decision handed down today by the State Supreme Court which upholds the validity of the State excise tax statute except that portion of it which taxes interstate corporations not doing business in Massachusetts.

The opinion was given on the petition of the W. and J. Sloane Company of New York which company maintains offices here but does no business within the State's borders. The validity of the entire excise tax law was attacked.

A decision of the United States Supreme Court nullifying that portion of the Massachusetts law providing for taxation of interstate cor-

BALKS WIFE'S SUICIDE AT U. S. COURT DOOR

Mrs. Charles Nastasi, wife of the former narcotic agent convicted on a charge of accepting a bribe of $300 to procure a position for a friend, caused considerable excitement today when she attempted to hurl herself over the balustrade on the third floor in the Federal Building when she was told her husband was soon to be sentenced.

Nastasi, his wife, Chief Narcotic Agent W. D. Allen and other agents were standing outside the courtroom door. Someone told Mrs. Nastasi that her husband was to be sentenced but not fined. It is claimed by those present that Mrs. Nastasi rushed for the railing and while screaming tried to cast herself into the pit.

Agent Allen just reached her side in time and pulled her back. She fainted but was restored in time to hear her husband sentenced to serve three months in the New Bedford House of Correction.

CAMBRIDGE SAFE IS BLOWN; $1,500 STOLEN

Entering through a cellar window, cracksmen blew the safe in the office of the Fred E. Whitney provision store at No. 35 Brattle street, Cambridge, last night and made away with checks and cash valued at $1,500.

The break was discovered this morning when an employe, opening the store for business, found the door of the safe blown off and lying on the floor.

The cellar window was smashed and the door leading from the cellar to the store was also forced. The police are confident that the cracksmen made their entrance in this manner.

Police believe that the job was the work of a professional safe breaker, and this theory is strengthened by the fact that nitro-glycerine was used in blowing up the safe.

The store handles the provision trade in the exclusive Brattle street district, and toward the end of the week there is always a large amount of money in the safe. Police officers believe that the cracksmen were aware of this when the break was planned.

Inspectors from police headquarters are investigating the robbery.

MILLER, EX-ALIEN CUSTODIAN, INDICTED

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—An indictment against Thomas L. Miller, former alein property custodian, was returned today by the special Federal grand jury which investigated payments made by his office on certain alien claims.

Others indicted included four individuals and three firms, Richard Merton, president, Mettaligesellschaft; Alfred Merton, president of the Metallbank of Frankfort-on-Main, Germany; Leopold Dubois, president, Swiss Bank, Basle, Switzerland; Fitz-Zahn Geigy, president, Societe Suisse pour valours des Metaux, Basle.

The firms indicted were those with which the individuals indicted were connected.

The indictment charges that these corporations conspired with John T. King and Jesse W. Smith, who is dead, to defraud the United States Government by illegally procuring the payment of $7,000,000 in Liberty bonds to them.

This amount was the proceeds of

TWO SHOTS FIRED AT MAYORAL CANDIDATE; ASSAILANTS SCUGHT

As a climax to the receipt of numerous threatening letters demanding his withdrawal from the mayoralty race, an attempt was made to assassinate Dr. Walter G. McGauley in the rear of his Jamaicaway home early today.

Two shots, both of which went wild, were fired at the physician by one of two thugs lurking in the shadows, as he descended from his automobile after completing a program of rallies.

Nearly 3,000 persons turned out at noon-day rallies in behalf of the mayoral candidacies of Theodore A. Glynn and Joseph H. O'Neil in Pemberton square and Faneuil Hall, respectively, today.

A crowd of 2,000 packed Pemberton square to listen to the facetious sallies of Mayor James M. Curley, and the denunciation of Malcolm E. Nichols' record by Commissioner Glynn.

Candidate O'Neil was enthusiastically applauded when he said he would veto the proposed "loop" highway unless the State and nearby communities helped pay for it, and emphasized the importance of the Boston airport.

CURLEY FLAYS FOES.

Mayor Curley at the outset was in playful mood, but before his speech ended he had warmed up so much he removed his fur coat and hat and thundered his denunciation of Glynn's rivals.

Referring to the attempt to shoot Dr. Walter G. McGauley, he said:

"That shooting had no political significance. No one would shoot at Dr. McGauley to get him out of the race. He's dead politically."

He dealth with each of the candidates in turn, and drew another roar,

WOMEN IN MAINE STATE PRISON ACCUSE DEPOSED CHAPLAIN

MAKE COUNTER CHARGES AGAINST CLIFFORD

under Pattangall's repeated questions, that he was a klansman.

At a noon conference, held by Governor Brewster, his council and the Prison Commission, it was decided to adjourn the probe until 10 a. m. next Monday.

It was announced that Attorney Pattangall, for the prison warden, will be allowed to place whatever witnesses he wishes on the stand.

In a letter to Warden Lester D. Eaton, the three women, who have been in solitary confinement on various occasions, demanded today that they be allowed to appear before the investigating board and refute the deposed chaplain's charges that the women had been intimate with men prisoners.

Charges of betting and bon bon parties in the solitary cells are declared false in the women's letter.

The letter, addressed to Warden Eaton, who is under fire in the probe, and signed by Gladys O. Staples, Elsie L. Salisbury and Ella Stone, read:

"If we girls up here are prisoners I think we should have a chance to protect our names from the untruthful things Mr. Clifford has published about us.

"Not one of us girls said that we had anything to do with a man while in solitary. It is a deliberate lie on Mr. Clifford's part.

"Mr. Eaton, I am a married woman (which of the three women wrote the letter was not revealed) and have a little girl to bring up after I leave here. If my husband sees the papers he knows that I was the first girl to go down there and I know if he believes it that it will be a case of us separating.

"Mr. Eaton, we swear before God that nothing took place while we were in solitary."

ACCUSE MINISTER.

At this point in the letter, charges were made against the deposed chaplain by the three women, and the missive continued:

"Mr. Eaton, all of us girls want to have a chance to face Mr. Clifford and have him prove what he has said. And if I don't get the chance, on the day I leave here—next Tuesday—I shall have something published in all the papers about him.

"Mr. Eaton, haven't we girls the right to have some kind of a hearing? I don't want to leave here until what Mr. Clifford has told is proven.

"We remain, as ever
Your girls, up here."

Shown the text of the letter written by the three women convicts, Chaplain Clifford smiled broadly and, in turn, declared the statements to be falsehoods.

"I shall demand," he said, in amplification of his original charges, "that Mrs. Clifford take the witness stand and publicly refute the statements. She can corroborate everything I said concerning the women.

"I wish to state most emphatically that these girls told me on several occasions, stories concerning familiarities with male prisoners. I tried to have them deny them but they would not. They even went so far as to name two of the men who visited them in the cells.

"They made the statement not only to me, but to Mrs. Clifford and to Warden Eaton. That is why I wish to have Mrs. Clifford's testimony."

The letter threw the investigating board into an even more seething ferment of unrest than characterized it when the probe was first opened.

Governor Brewster, openly defied by members of his council and the Prison Commission in his attempt first to remove Warden Eaton and Assistant Warden Colgan, and later to "fire" the Prison Board, has been charged openly with seeking to replace the warden with a man having Klan affiliations.

WAR AGAINST KLAN.

Members of the Governor's Council, sitting at the hearing in Watts Hall, refused point blank to support any attempt to replace the warden or the commissioners, and it is almost admitted today that the scandal is a war between the cohorts of the Klan and the enemies of the order.

Today's first witness in the probe was H. L. Thomas, guard in the prison harness shop, who admitted that gambling had been going on in the institution even under the old regime, although it had increased a bit in the last two years.

Thomas told of seeing several prisoners on top of a cell tier last June and when questioned, the prisoners said they were cleaning up.

Two days later four prisoners, one of whom was James Bennett, later shot and killed in Everett, Mass., while masquerading as a woman, escaped the prison via the cell-tier top.

Joseph L. Paquin, official clerk at the prison for five years, testified that the cost of running the prison had jumped 40 per cent. in the last fiscal year over the previous year.

This, he said, was brought about partly through the better feeling of the inmates under the self-governing plan and the income had been smaller, partly because of the fire that crippled harness and broom production.

Answering questions put by Governor Brewster, the clerk said that prison officers, following conferences on prison matters in Warden Eaton's office, appeared to be dissatisfied.

GUARDS SATISFIED.

Cross-questioned by Councillor Folsom, however, Paquin admitted the the dissatisfied men were shop foremen and not guards.

Paquin admitted that no one of these foremen had ever suggested to him that conditions might be improved under a new warden.

Councillor Linnell: "What conclusions did you come to concerning these matters?"

Paquin: "We talked them over at our hangout in the village, a store frequented by attaches of the prison, and we felt that right would triumph."

Linnell: "What's that idea of triumph?"

Paquin: "That there would be a change in wardens."

LIFER SWINGS CLUB.

Percy Averill, fireman employed in the prison, testified that one night Edward Graffan, a lifer, in for two murders in Gorham, walked around the prison swinging a club.

On another occasion a trusty came to Averill, he said, and asked for oil of cloves, the trusty declaring he wanted it for one of the woman inmates.

While Averill was down in his boiler room one night, he said, a trusty entered the room and Averill remarked that the man was up late.

"He said, 'Yes, me and another guy were up to Rockland in one of the houses with some of the girls'," Averill testified. "He named the place. I asked him how he got out, and he said over the wall with a ladder and they walked the railroad tracks. He didn't know I saw him come back over the wall."

Governor Brewster broke in: "Did you see him coming over the wall?"

Averill: "Yes."

Cross-examined by Attorney Pattangall, the fireman-witness admitted that there were inaccuracies in his affidavit.

REPUDIATES AFFIDAVIT.

"Have you read your affidavit made on September 28?" asked Pattangall.

"Yes," Averill responded.

Q.—In that you mention this incident about two prisoners scaling the wall and going to a house in Rockland? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you also state here, over your sworn signature, that you heard Deputy Warden Colgan remark to one of the prisoners that it was all right and that nothing would be done? A.—Yes.

Q.—Now, as a matter of fact, did you hear that remark yourself or did somebody tell you about it? A.—I didn't hear it.

Q.—Did the deputy warden know that these men had gone to Rockland? A.—No, I was the only one who knew that and I did not tell anybody about it until I made out this affidavit.

Q.—As a matter of fact, you knew that Deputy Warden Colgan was not at the prison on September 5 when that happened, didn't you, and that he didn't return until September 20? A.—Yes, that is true.

WRITTEN BY ANOTHER.

Q.—Then who put in your affidavit that statement? A.—The person that wrote it.

Q.—You admit that the statement is wrong? A.—Yes, I didn't see that part of it.

Q.—Will you tell us the name of the man who wrote your affidavit? A.—I prefer not to unless the Governor insists.

Governor Brewster: "I wish to protect your rights and the rights and interests of all concerned. Therefore, I don't wish to give you advice. I think that is a matter which you must decide for yourself."

Averill: "I prefer not to say anything."

Pattangall: "In view of the fact that your affidavit has been published in the papers of New England, do you wish to have these incorrect statements remain over your signature or do you wish to correct them?"

Averill: "The statement that I heard the deputy warden say that is not right, but I prefer not to tell the name of the man who wrote the affidavit."

NAMES PRISON CLERK.

Governor Brewster: "In view of the fact that no crime has been committed or alleged, would that change your opinion concerning your reluctance to disclose the name of the person who wrote the affidavit? If so, I think it would be to the interest of this inquiry to tell it."

Pattangall: "Will you now tell us the name of the man?"

Averill: "Joe Paquin."

Pattangall: "The clerk of the prison?"

Averill: "Yes."

An audible exclamation went through the courtroom, even members of the Governor's Council and Prison Commission taking part in the expression of surprise.

Q.—Was your affidavit made out before a notary? A.—Yes.

Q.—By whose appointment? A.—By my own appointment.

Q.—With whom did you talk about this prior to making the affidavit? A.—With Goddard and Johnson.

Q.—Who is Goddard? A.—He is a local clothier.

PRISONER MADE KEYS.

Chaplain Clifford was recalled here and a few questions put to him. Then Frank S. Lund, a guard, took the stand.

Lund testified that he knew of one trusty who had been asked by Deputy Warden Colgan to make a key for the lock box where a master lock and key were kept. The prisoner, Lund declared, also made a duplicate key for himself.

Then Lester C. Lufkin, a guard, testified that one Charles McLeod a life prisoner who has served twenty years of his sentence for killing a girl, was allowed to deliver wood in Thomaston without a guard.

Following him came Levi Jones with a declaration that prisoners played leap frog in the prison yard for no other purpose than to practice scaling the walls. They jumped upon each other's shoulders.

COULDN'T EXPLAIN.

The witness, however, was unable to answer a question as to how the prisoners could reach the top of the twenty-five-foot wall in this manner.

Arthur Kallock, a guard, testified to alleged lack of discipline and then Henry S. Russ admitted that his affidavit was written by another.

Henry R. Young, another guard, was tripped up by Pattangall after the guard had given testimony to seeing the prison deputy warden take 24 cents away from a Protestant prisoner, while allowing a Catholic to keep $15.

After a searching cross-examination, Young finally admitted that this incident occurred three or four years ago—before the present prison administration.

Breaks His Specks, Can't See Scales. Is Fined $50

It cost Samuel Shrago of Addison street, Chelsea, $50 in Malden District Court today because he was weighing coal for the University Coal Co., Cambridge, on Oct. 16 without his eye-glasses.

Shrago, arraigned on the charge of delivering short weight coal to Harry Zimmerman, of Harrison street, Malden, said his glasses were broken and he couldn't see the scales correctly, presenting a bill from an oculist as evidence. The two tons delivered were found six hundred pounds short. Despite his plea that he couldn't see the scale figures, he was fined $50.

BRENNAN WILL DEMAND STREET IMPROVEMENTS

William E. Brennan

Improvement of thoroughfares and a highly perfected system of garbage collection will be one of the paramount municipal solutions undertaken by William E. Brennan, candidate for the City Council from Ward 13, Dorchester, if elected. Speaking at a Dorchester rally, Mr. Brennan said he believed his long experience as a newspaperman has served to familiarize him with the law-making branches of government. Mr. Brennan is a member of the Knights of Columbus and many other fraternities.

CALL COOLIDGE IN MITCHELL CASE, IS PLAN

istering the air services of the government, but was merely a denial that his accusation constituted conduct in violation of good order and discipline, as declared in the charge.

The request for a bill of particulars was thrown out by the court after a heated argument between counsel, in which Representative Reid of Illinois, Mitchell's civil counsel, declared the charges as worded by the War Department were "too vague."

The court's law officer held that since all the charges were set out in the specifications already filed the request of the defense should be denied. This finding the court accepted without objection from any member.

WOULD FACE COOLIDGE.

After the plea of not guilty had been entered, Mr. Reid objected that the proceedings were not according to the court manual, since the charges against the accused had not been brought in the manner fixed by the manual. This objection the court overruled, too.

Little progress on the trial itself was made, however, at today's session. After the prosecution had finished reading from the court manual a long list of regulations by which the proceedings are to be governed, the court recessed until Monday to permit attorneys for the prosecution and defense to make a preliminary examination of witnesses who had arrived from Texas.

As today's session of the court-martial began, a report went the rounds among the spectators that Colonel Mitchell would ask either President Coolidge or Secretary Davis of the War Department to face him before the court.

The defence also is considering the advisability of seeking a subpoena for Secretary of War Davis, since Colonel Mitchell's counsel contends that the war secretary, as well as the President, is the accuser in the trial of the air officer.

Regardless of the decision of the defence in the matter of subpoenas, the court martial, in the opinion of army legal officers, probably will refuse a presidential subpoena. Precedent, they said, is all against such a course.

The colonel's counsel declined to comment, but intimated that some surprise move probably would be made. There also were indications that Colonel Mitchell felt that he had a right to be brought face to face with "the accuser" in his trial.

Yesterday defence counsel sought by a series of insistent questions to learn who actually had ordered the Colonel court-martialed.

"COOLIDGE AND DAVIS."

Colonel Sherman Moreland, the judge advocate-general, at first said that "this is a presidential court," and later placed responsibility for the proceeding on both President Coolidge and Secretary Davis.

It was pointed out in War Department circles today that in the case of Judge Advocate David G Swain, decided many years ago and upheld by the Supreme Court, the charges were made by President Arthur in person. That the court-martial manual had been revised since that time, the government contends, makes no difference, so far as the court procedure today is concerned.

REID SCOFFS AT COURT.

Colonel Moreland opened today's session by asking why Colonel Mitchell had asked for a "bill of particulars."

"The charges against the accused," Mr. Reid replied, "are too vague, too broad and indefinite."

Colonel Moreland rejoined that this request had the same basis as the already rejected challenging of the court's jurisdiction.

"A bill of particulars," he added "is not called for in such cases as this. It is to be remembered that the specifications are now an integral part of the court record. There is no power in this court to compel me to deliver a bill of particulars."

"He was going to prepare a bill last night," Mr. Reid declared. "This morning we are told the court has no power. What has happened overnight to rob the court of its power? Yesterday we heard that the court was all powerful."

COURT SAVES MILLIONS TO STATE

porations was the basis for the action.

The Sloane petition was dismissed because of the failure of the company to attack the validity of the Massachusetts law within the six months' period stipulated in the general laws of the State.

If the State Court had declared the law invalid in its entirety the Commonwealth would have been compelled to return many millions of dollars to foreign corporations doing business here.

State Tax Commissioner Henry F. Long stated today that more than $300,000 in excise taxes paid by interstate corporations under the Massachusetts law had been "absorbed" or returned since the Federal courts have declared such taxation invalid.

Hundreds of interstate corporations who have paid about $1,000,000 into the State treasury failed to seek the remedy provided in the law and have no further recourse.

Briefly the Supreme Court's decision means that foreign corporations which engage in business in Massachusetts are subject to the excise tax while other interstate corporations which merely maintain offices or "connections" and do no business are not taxable.

When informed of the State court decision today Henry F. Long, commissioner of corporations and taxation, said:

"In the light of the decision, even though appeal is made from it to the United States Supreme Court, there will be no action by the commissioner of corporations and taxation or by the city and towns in assessing back taxes from 1920 to 1925, inclusive, which might be justified as a precautionary measure taken in anticipation of a possible decision by the United States Supreme Court holding differently than the Massachusetts court.

"Arrangements made as to service of petitions for recovery of taxes are cancelled. The decision makes unnecessary any further consideration by the taxing officials of the cities and towns or of the Commonwealth.

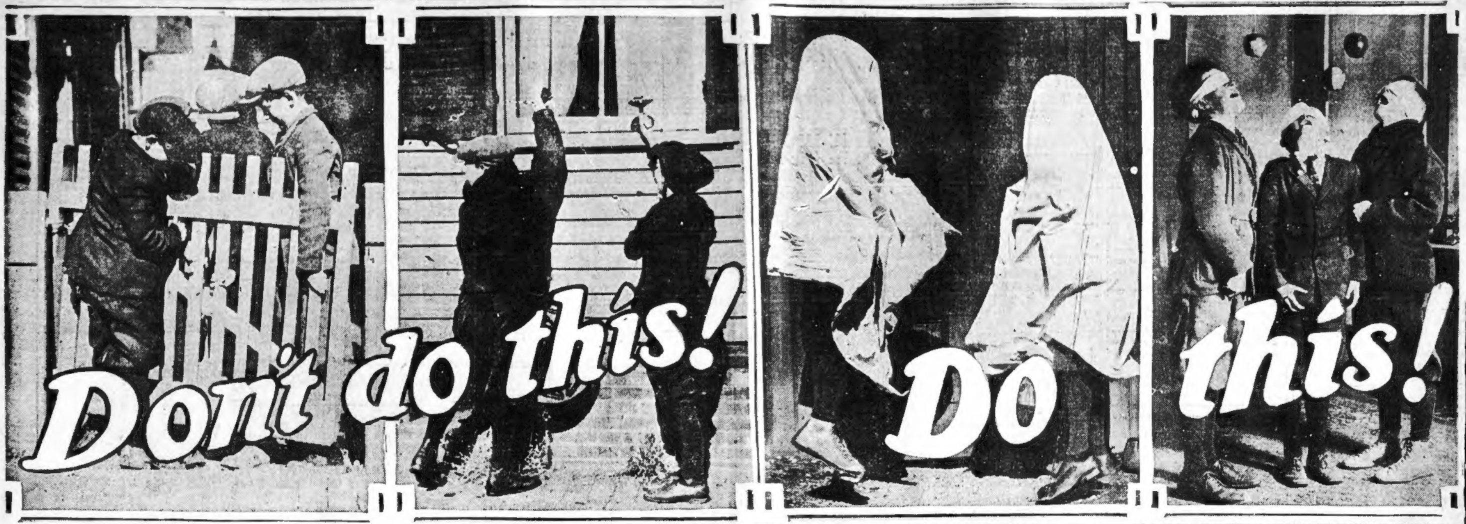
WRONG AND RIGHT WAYS OF CELEBRATING HALLOWEEN PICTURED FOR BOSTON BOYS



Don't do this!
Do this!

Don't make off with your neighbors' gates. It is apt to make them angry and is sure always to cause trouble and sometimes brings property loss. Soaping windows, too, is to be shunned by all well-behaved boys and girls, as is indiscriminate ringing of doorbells. Stick to bobbing for apples, while blindfolded, and parading as ghosts, youngsters, and you will be all right.

MISSING LYNN GIRL HAD ELOPED

The ten days' search for Beatrice Perry, seventeen years old, of No. 48 Park street, Lynn, thought by her mother to have been a captive in Claremont, N. H., ended today when the girl was held in Manchester, N. H., as a stubborn child.

With her was Edward Bean of No. 711 Western avenue, Lynn, who disappeared from his home the same time the girl dropped out of sight.

The couple, who were found in a lodging house, informed the police they were married Saturday at Derry, N. H., after having failed to obtain a license in Keene because of the girl's youth.

They were sent back to Lynn and will appear in Lynn court tomorrow.

The Manchester authorities were notified that an extremely young couple were staying at a lodging house, and the arrest followed.

TORMENTED, HE STABS TWO

Enraged by taunts of fellow employes, Michael De Sapio, 28, of No. 56 Patriot Parkway, Chelsea, drew a knife from his pocket today and severely lacerated two tormenters in the shipping room of the Revere Rubber Co., Eastern avenue, Chelsea, police allege.

Robert Armstrong, 23, of No. 36 Cambridge street, Revere, and Matthew Jones, 21, of No. 370 Crescent avenue, Chelsea, were wounded. They were rushed to the hospital. Armstrong was found to have been stabbed under the heart and cut on the left forearm, while Jones suffered a stab wound beneath the heart and lacerations on the right hand, when he tried to disarm the assailant.

De Sapio was locked up at Chelsea police station charged with assault with dangerous weapon.

BOY, "HOOKING" RIDE, KILLED UNDER TRUCK

Robert Harvey, seven, of No. 345 Harvard street, Cambridge, was killed while he and two unidentified boys were "hooking" a ride on a truck driven by William Smiddy, No. 35 Mt. Pleasant street, Roxbury.

On Putnam street, near Massachusetts avenue, the Harvey boy's right leg became caught in a chain which dragged him beneath the right rear wheel. He was dead when taken to the Cambridge Relief Hospital.

PROTESTS $5,000 FEE FOR PARKER IN BROKERS' CASE

In a hearing before Referee George W. Stetson in U. S. Bankruptcy Court to allow fees of $9,250 to counsel for the brokerage firm of Burgess, Lang Company, Attorney Edward E. Ginsberg, representing a creditor, filed objections that the total assets were not more than $45,000 while liabilities exceeded $900,000. The petition was taken under advisement. Among counsel who seek fees are former Attorney-General Herbert Parker, who asks $5,000; Frank W. Kaan, Somerville city solicitor, $750; Thomas L. Wiles, $1,000 and Robert E. Harding, $2,500.

SNOW OR RAIN PREDICTED FOR HUB TONIGHT

Storm to Mar Saturday's Expected Ideal Football Weather; Cold Snap to End

A sudden storm center developing over New England may mar the expected ideal football for Saturday. Today the weather bureau predicts snow or rain tonight and tomorrow morning.

A rapidly rising temperature is forecast for Saturday night and Sunday.

No severe cold spell is predicted at this time, and although the thermometer has shown a gradual drop since yesterday, it has about reached its lowest mark. The lowest point recorded on the official ermometer here during the past 4 hours was 32 at one o'clock this orning.

The extreme cold wave which has een gripping the entire northwest as vanished and the thermometer as rising rapidly today. Northeld, Vt., with a temperature of , was the coldest New England oint, Burlington, Vt., and Greenlle, Me., reported 26 each.

Rain was falling throughout the ulf States with snow in the Ohio alley. Cold weather is general from ansas and Nebraska eastward to e Atlantic Coast.

In Philadelphia there were flurries snow early today, following an tense cold snap. Yesterday was e coldest October 29 Philadelphia ver had.

The first snow of the season fell New York today. The scattering akes melted as they hit the ground.

OUR NEW SMALLPOX CASES IN R. I. ORPHANAGE

Woonsocket, R. I., Oct. 30. (A.P.).—our more mild cases of smallpox were reported today at St. Francis' Orphanage here. The children taken down had been vaccinated last Sunday. Of the other 14 cases eight are convalescent and the remainder are doing well. No fatalities are expected.

Very Easy Money
Interest That Devours
Cuba's Sugar Problem
Cure for Epilepsy?

—By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1925, by The Star Co.

THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE, which keeps securities "liquid," raises money easily. Twenty-five more seats will be added to the Exchange, raising the total from 1,100 to 1,125. These will be sold for $135,000 each, adding $3,500,000 to the Stock Exchange assets.

One hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars is a good price for seats, especially as the Exchange is without any place to sit down. The brokers stand up.

EXTRA SEATS are added, not merely for the sake of "easy money," but because the brokers actually at work are unable to handle the business. Yesterday, for instance, speculators bought and sold 2,407,700 shares of stock. Hundreds of different stocks are listed; brokers even beg for an extra holiday to let them catch up with their own business.

PRICES CONTINUE to climb, and many of those that were busy shaking a warning finger are now using the finger to write out checks to pay for more stock.

IN CERTAIN LINES there will be a shock for some of the speculators. In others profits steadily increasing.

EVERYBODY has heard of the colored brother who put all his money in the bank, and was told when he came to draw it out that "interest had eaten up his money."

FRANCE CAN sympathize with that colored gentleman. She borrowed one hundred millions from Morgan & Company to meet an exchange emergency drop. The French have been holding the cash to meet other dangers and meanwhile interest at the rate of 7 per cent. has been eating up the principal, of which the French have only $77,750,000 left. We haven't got back the money that we lent Europe, but at least it isn't costing us anything while we don't get it back.

AN AIR MAIL service between the United States and Cuba is promised at an early date. That will be welcome, bringing friendly countries closer together.

President Coolidge might inaugurate the air mail by writing to the President of Cuba, announcing a reduction in our sugar tariff.

PRICES of raw sugar in Cuba are now so low that it does not pay to produce the sugar. Unless something is done to help our neighbors they will be obliged to cut down production, and Americans will have the pleasure of paying extravagant prices for sugar once more.

As a preliminary step American housewives should buy all the sugar that is within reason, storing an extra supply to help dispose of the present surplus.

FROM LENINGRAD comes news of a cure for epilepsy, the value of the cure vouched for by a really great scientist, Professor Pavloff. A serum made of altotoxin, manufactured from the frozen brain substance of dogs, produces a substance that prevents epileptic seizures.

That will horrify anti-vivisectionists, but it will mean, if hopes are justified, a great blessing to the human race. And the dogs suffer no pain.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE does not believe in interfering with other men's jobs, so he allows distinguished incompetents to put Colonel Mitchell on trial merely for telling the truth.

It would be interesting to know the President's real opinion on this preposterous trial.

WHAT COLONEL MITCHELL said about the United States air fleet, its incompetent management and general worthlessness was repeated, in substance, by every competent flier testifying at the recent aircraft investigation.

IT DOESN'T SEEM probable that every man in the United States force, able to fly, knows less about flying than the desk-bound gentlemen that sent the Shenandoah to destruction.

And what about the Constitutional guarantee of free speech? Does that not apply to army officers?

IF YOU COMPLAINED of too hot or cold weather yesterday, find comfort in comparison. In Rapid City, South Dakota, the thermometer stood at 14 degrees below zero. In Illinois market gardeners are ruined by frozen celery and sweet potatoes. Ice has closed navigation on the upper Mississippi. We have all kinds of climate.

SHACKLED GUEST LEAVES KINDLY COP AT MOVIES

Keene, N. H., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Percy Long, under arrest and handcuffed on a charge of stealing automobile tires, escaped from Constable William Marotte of Troy, Thursday night, while the officer was entertaining his prisoner at the movies, which were upstairs in the town hall where the lockup is located. Long is still at large. He was seen about 3 a. m. today, still wearing the handcuffs. Long was indicted on three counts of receiving stolen goods.

TROY AND BRITT HELD ON TWO NEW CHARGES

Worcester, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—John Troy and Denis J. Britt, under indictments on several counts of highway robbery as alleged members of an auto thug gang, were arraigned today in Superior Court on two new indictments, charging assault with intent to rob, after Walter Derosier, said to be a member of the band, was shot, August 9. Both pleaded not guilty and the court allowed their previous bail of $70,000 to stand.

WINSTED'S BARBER SHOP SINGERS WIN OVER RADIO

Hartford, Conn., Oct. 30. (A.P.)—Winsted's ballad singers, like its nature stories, are bringing fame to this place. The Julian Brothers quartet fon the "Barber Shop Ballad" contest of WTIC broadcasting service be vote of the listeners-in. The quartet received a majority of the votes cast and it will take part in the New England finals at Boston next month.

GUESTS SWAMP HUB HOTELS

Demand for rooms in Boston hotels is greater this season than for many years past, and in some instances rooms are being booked for weeks in advance. Two months ago one hotel stopped making any more reservations for the Harvard-Yale game.

The reasons for this increased demand appear to vary. One hotel man lays it to inadequate hotel facilities in the city. Another thinks it is because the general prosperity of the country is on the increase and more persons are traveling than have for some seasons past.

A third proprietor credits the bus lines for the increased demand. More persons are registering in some hotels from New Hampshire, Vermont and Maine than ever before, and his theory is that many are taking bus rides for recreation and stopping over night in Boston.

PRINCE PAUL TO VISIT BOSTON

Lowell, Oct. 30.—Flappers hereabouts are all excited about the coming of Prince Paul of Greece to Lowell next Sunday. Indications are that the prince, who is a good-looking chap, single and twenty-six, will be given the same sort of reception tendered his cousin, the Prince of Wales, when he visited this country.

Elaborate plans have been made for the entertainment of Prince Paul. Residents of Greek communities in all the Merrimack Valley cities will be here to get a glimpse of the son of the late King Constantine.

Upon arrival in Boston from New York Sunday morning, the prince will be met by a delegation of Lowell Greeks and will motor to this city. He will go direct to the Holy Trinity Church, where there will be a commemoration service for his father. The church will be specially decorated for the occasion.

NEXT MONDAY, November 2nd

THE most astonishing demonstration ever held will be given throughout the country by dealers in Victor products. It will begin at 9 A. M. and continue throughout the day

It will introduce the most important contribution to music since the invention, 30 years ago, of the Victor Talking Machine

DON'T miss it! It will be one of the most amazing demonstrations you have ever heard. It will establish new standards of comparison and change your whole present viewpoint on the subject of music in the home.

The more critical your attitude toward music, the more astounded you will be. You will hear a range of tone, a perfection of tone, a richness and fullness in every note that will move you to the edge of your chair with an eagerness hitherto unknown.

A few people have heard this new instrument, and to say that they have been amazed, is but a meager description. Fritz Kreisler, Ernestine Schumann-Heink and John Philip Sousa have listened and marveled.

November 2nd has been set aside as Victor Day—as the day on which this new instrument will be presented to the public.

All classes of music will be played and sung by Victor's own incomparable artists Instrumental solos. Vocal selections. Choruses. Bands. Dance music. In sufficient variety to disclose the amazing versatility of the instrument.

No matter what you plan to do next Monday, do not miss this demonstration. You will never forget it.

Go to the nearest dealer in Victor products any time after nine o'clock during the day of November 2nd. Even though you may be away from home, there will be a demonstration nearby which you can attend. In every city, in every state in the United States, this miraculous instrument will amaze and capture all who hear it.

Victor Day—November 2, 1925—is destined to be a day that will stand out in the history of music.

The entire neighborhood, including the family of Mayor James M. Curley, next door, was aroused by the shots.

Although the candidate was accompanied by a bodyguard, Special Officer George T. Hall, and his brother, Robert N. McGauley, the thugs made their escape.

Patrolman John J. Dunn, pulling a box at Jamaicaway and Perkins street, two blocks away, arrived on the scene within a few minutes, but was unable to find any trace of the men.

Later a detail of police from Station 13, under Sergeant Sullivan, sent in response to a telephone call from Dr. McGauley, combed the neighborhood without success.

"They've got to shoot and kill me in order to stop me from participating in the mayoralty contest," Dr. MGauley said today. "I'm in the fight until the very finish."

Acording to the physician's story to the Boston Evening American he reached his home at No. 380 Jamaicaway about 1:45 a. m., accompanied by his brother and Special Officer Hall.

The bodyguard has accompanied the physician on his campaign tours since Sept. 21, Dr. McGauley said, because of the threatening letters he has received.

The candidate paid no attention to the missives, which were unsigned, and destroyed them as soon as received. One, which arrived at the McGauley home about a week ago read: "If you don't get out of the mayoralty fight, we'll knock you off."

The physician said he was the first out of the machine, and was about to enter the garage to open the big doors and turn on the lights when two men stepped out of the shadows.

The candidate had time only to notice they were of medium height, with caps pulled down over their eyes, when one of the thugs raised his hand and a revolver barked twice.

The thugs faded into the shadows as Dr. McCauley, his first thought for his family, sped towards the house, shouting: "Look out for the children and my wife."

Running into the house he turned on the lights, to be met by his startled wife and two children, who had been awakened by the shots.

The physician had sent his wife home earlier in the evening with friends, and she reported finding a light turned on in the cellar and the bulkhead door open. There was no evidence that the house had been ransacked.

Dr. McGauley immediately notified the police, and in the meantime Patrolman Dunn had arrived, and started a search with Special Officer Hall and Robert McGauley.

There was no sleep in the McGauley household, and but little in the neighborhood after the shooting.

Dr. McGauley announced that he would continue his campaign as usual.

SUES 'HUSBAND' FOR $150,000 LOAN

Ann Murdock, comedienne, in addition to attempting to have her marriage declared void on the ground that her husband is still married to his first wife by reason of having violated provisions of the divorce, is suing to recover $150,000 in bonds which she loaned to him before they were wed.

O'HARE HOLDS BIG RALLIES

"Knowledge of school conditions and of children's problems in the schools, most necessary of all qualifications of a candidate for school committee, was never better emphasized than in my fight for the left-handed children," it was declared at big rallies held by William G. O'Hare, candidate for re-election to the Boston School Committee.

When he first took office as a member of the committee, the candidate said, left-handed children were being forced to write with their right hands. "It made scores of them that were bright and able appear backward and stupid," said Mr. O'Hare.

"I immediately sought and obtained passage of an order allowing them to use their left hands if they willed, taking the stand that the power in their little hands was a God-given and not a man-directed force.

"Now, due to my efforts, all the children entering our schools may write with either hand, giving them all an equal chance to go ahead with their studies, instead of being forced to write in a manner entirely unnatural to them at a time when their little heads are busy trying to assimilate the many new things that come to them at the start of school."

LUFKIN TO BE SWORN IN AGAIN ON MONDAY

Federal Judge James M. Morton, at 12:30 o'clock on Monday, will administer the oath of office to W. W. Lufkin, Collector of Customs for the Port of Boston and District of Massachusetts. The ceremony, informal, will take place in the office of the collector in the Custom House and will be attended by all employes of the customs department here, the heads of other Federal departments and many personal friends. Collector Lufkin was recently re-appointed by President Coolidge.

MILLER UNDER INDICTMENT

the sale of shares in the American Metal Company which were seized by A. Mitchell Palmer, alien property custodian, shodtly after the United States entered the war.

The indictment, comprising thirty pages, recites in lengthy detail the operations of the plan which was worked out in Germany by Richard Merton to get the payment of the money by Thomas W. Miller, then alien property custodian.

The indictment alleges that Richard Merton and his associates controlled the Societe Suisse Pour Valeus Des Meteaux, to which payment of the proceeds of the sale of the stock of the American Metal Company was made.

John T. King, former Republican National Committeeman from Connecticut, appeared before the grand jury and waived immunity, the official statement said and, although charged in an indictment as being a conspirator, it was the opinion of the grand jury that he should not be indicted individually.

Hiram C. Todd, special assistant attorney general in charge of the case, said Mr. King was considered an important witness for the government.

Asked whether Colonel Miller had appeared, Mr. Todd replied in the negative. "He was given an invitation," he said, "but did not accept which of course was entirely within his legal rights.

Among the overt acts set out in the indictments were the following:

"Before the claim was presented to the custodian, $50,000 was paid by one of the Mertons to Jesse Smith and John T. King; and, on October 1, 1921, immediately after Merton had received $7,000,000 from the Treasury of the United States, he paid $391,000 of the bonds so received to Thomas W. Miller, Jesse Smith and John T. King at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

HER MARRIAGE VOID, ASSERTS ANN MURDOCK

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Because of an unusual provision in a divorce decree that separated her husband and his first wife, Ann Murdock, comedienne, believes she can have her own marriage annulled. She is now suing to recover $150,000 in securities she lent him.

Harry C. Powers, her stockbroker husband, and his first wife, Florence Greil, were divorced twelve years ago in Nevada. The decree gave him custody of a son, now seventeen and provided that the son should never be taken within 100 miles of New York.

Attorneys for Miss Murdock, who is suing under her real maiden name of Irene Ann Coleman, claim that this provision has been violated, that the divorce therefore was automatically nullified, and that the comedienne's secret marriage in September, 1924, consequently is void because Powers still is married to his first wife. In the meantime the first wife has remarried.

Attorneys for Powers told the Court yesterday that the trouble started because the actress found she disliked her husband's relatives. Miss Murdock denies that relatives-in-law are the cause of her estrangement. She accuses him of ill treatment, which she says was mental rather than physical.

Hijackers Raid Jail; Steal $4,000 in Liquor

Early today hijackers broke into the Weston jail, which is in the cellar of the Town Hall, jimmied the door of the cell and stole $4,000 worth of fine Scotch liquor.

The booze was seized recently when Motorcycle Policeman J. Sumner Vites of the State Constabulary arrested the alleged owner, Antonio Cognato, of Quincy. The latter was held on an illegal transportation charge.

Cognato later appeared in the local court and was bound over for the Grand Jury.

Then the police turned their attention to the stored Scotch.

"It would take a Houdini to get at that stuff," muttered a policeman.

"Just the same, guard it with your life," was the chief's order.

Now, although the police force of Weston is a most efficient one, the Scotch has puried its way out of jail and to parts unknown.

"Sure, we watched the liquor," said Captain McGaulis. "That is, we watched it on and off, but the Weston police force has to eat, doesn't he?

Merchants Meet Cowper

A. E. Cowper, director of Selfridge's in London, Eng., was the guest at a private luncheon given by Louis E. Kirstein, at the Boston Chamber of Commerce this noon. A dozen or more prominent merchants of the city were present to meet Mr. Cowper.

HUSBAND FOUND BY BRIDE WITH OTHER WOMAN

When Mrs. Earl Hall, a bride of a little more than a year, returned to her home at No. 25 Queensberry street, Back Bay, from Brockton unexpectedly and let herself into the house she took one look around.

The disarrangement of things convinced her all had not been well in her absence. So she went asleuthing. She hid in a nearby apartment house and later on, calling Patrolman Noyes of the Back Bay station, she let the policeman and herself into her own apartment, where they found her husband, Earl Hall, and a woman who gave the name of Mrs. Virginia Reynolds, twenty-seven, of the South End. The two were placed under arrest.

The couple were arraigned before Judge Ahern in Roxbury District Court today. Hall, a dapper, dark-haired Sheik-like type, was given six months, when he pleaded guilty and bail was set at $1,500 on his appeal. The case against Mrs. Reynolds was continued until Nov. 5. Her bail was set at $500.

Mrs. Hall, replying to the judge's question, showed no disposition to forgive her husband.

"He'd just misbehave again," she said, adding Hall never had supported her and that she haid the rent. Hall admitted he had served two years in Concord, N. H., for forgery.

DIVERS IN NEW ATTEMPT TO RAISE S51

Pontoons Lowered, but Sub Not Expected on Surface Until December 1

Pontoons were lowered today with the assistance of deep sea divers in another attempt to raise the submarine S51 which lies at the bottom of the ocean off Block Island, after a collision with the steamship City of Rome.

A control force from the New York Navy yard is in charge of salvaging operations.

Diver John W. L'Heureus, who yesterday was stricken with "bends," a malady peculiar to deep-water diving and tunnel work, was reported today as resting fairly comfortable, but still in a serious condition. He was affected while at work on the submarine.

New London, Conn., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Equipped with food supplies for the salvage workers at the scene of the S51 disaster, and equipment for use in the attempt to lift the submarine from its resting place on the bottom o fthe Atlantic, the submarine S50, sister ship of the lost craft, left the submarine base todya to assist in the salvaging operations.

Officials stated today that it would be several weeks before the actual attempt at lifing he submarne would be made, and inimated that if the submersible was not brought to the surface before December 1, the salvaging efforts would be abandoned until Spring.

66TH YEAR OF A. & P. STORES CELEBRATED

2,400 in N. E., Directed by W. J. Davidson, Observe Anniversary

The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company celebrates its sixty-sixth anniversary this week in all its stores.

The company's expansion and growth have been constant and development in all fields has been phenomenal. The company now operates twenty-four hundred stores in New England, which come under the supervision of the New England Division of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company.

This is a part of the great oak that has grown from the little acorn planted by the late president and founder of the company, George Huntington Hartford, sixty-six years ago. The founder's idea of service with quality and economy and a square deal for customer and employe alike is the firm foundation on which stands today a mighty business.

The vast sales of this great company may be visualized by the following facts: Total business done last year was $352,093,342. Sixty-eight million pounds of coffee were sold and two hundred and twenty-five millions of tea, seventy-five million pounds of butter, forty million dozen of eggs, two hundred-fifty million pounds of flour, four hundred and eighteen million pounds of sugar, five hundred and forty million pounds of potatoes, one hundred nine million cans of milk, two hundred sixty-two million cans of assorted canned goods, two hundred million loaves of bread.

The New England Division comprises the territory served by the warehouses located in Boston, Providence, Springfield, Albany, New York and Portland, Me.

W. J. Davidson, president of the New England Division, states that the business outlook for the coming year is very good and that his company is planning to serve a greater number of people in a better way.

YALE GRADS INSPECT 200-ACRE PRESERVE

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Yale University's new two hundred acre natural preserve is being inspected today by Yale graduates interested in the development of this property which is a portion of the Ray Tomkins Memorial, west of Yale Bowl. The alumni group will discuss plans for the development of the preserve with the faculty committee. Among the graduates who have interested themselves in the project are George T. Adee, '95; Sterling W. Childs, '91, and Dr. Frank R. Oastler, '91, all of New York City.

Why?

Why does man's clothing button on the right side, and a woman's clothing button on the left side?

Just unbutton your coat and then button it up again. Well, which side was it? It is almost impossible to determine sex by the simple test.

Why have men and women down through the ages buttoned their clothing on the opposite sides?

"Adam was right-handed and Eve was left-handed, I suppose," said an official of a prominent tailoring firm.

"It's like this," was the answer of the head of a firm of fashioners of feminine creations. "Women have always had someone to help them with their clothing—a maid or a friend, both in the making and the dressing. People naturally work right-handed, and in making clothing for someone else, or in buttoning clothing for someone else, it is quite natural to button with the right hand.

"As a result," he continued, "women's clothing came to be made with the buttons on the left and has been made that way ever since. Men, on the contrary, have as a general rule always put on their own clothes, and naturally button the buttons with the right hand, hence the men's clothes are made with the right-hand buttons."

Sounds logical, doesn't it??

JORDAN MARSH HAS ELECTRIC FAIRYLAND

Big Store to Demonstrate Wide Range of Possibilities for Housewives

A fairyland of electricity, tamed to bear the burdens of the housewife, where all the modern wife has to do to accomplish her cooking, washing, ironing and all the old fashioned drudgeries, is to push a button, can be seen this week in the exhibition hall of the Jordan Marsh store from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Everything, from warming the baby's bottle to keeping the ice chest cold is done by electricity. The wizard that can blow hot and cold in the same breath, wield the heavy iron, wash the family linen, cook the family meals, blow cool breezes in hot weather and send a glow of comforting heat in the chill autumn days, will be put through his paces for the benefit of Boston's housewives by experts in electrical appliances.

The special features of the electrical appliance exhibition are lectures Thursday, Friday and Saturday on preparing meals, waffle making, brewing coffee and the solving of many an age-old household problem by means of electricity. The exhibition will be held daily this week in the exhibition hall on the tenth floor of the Jordan Marsh store annex.

NOTICE TO WIVES: YOU MUSTN'T FLATIRON HUBBY!

Mrs. Lillian Parsons of Dartmouth street Boston, was found guilty in Chelsea court today of assault and battery on her husband, Cyrus Parsons, at the latter's home on Addison street, when she threw a flatiron at him. Judge Cutler sentenced the woman to Sherborn. The couple have not been living together since last Thanksgiving. They have three children. Mrs. Parsons appealed.

McCARTHY SPOKE AT MANY RALLIES

Urging the establishment of closer and more intimate associations between the parents of students, the school board, the teachers and the schools themselves Walter V. McCarthy, candidate for election to the School Committee spoke at rallies in Dorchester, Jamaica Plain, Roxbury, Roslindale, Hyde Park, South End and Brighton.

Dies From Burns

Carmella DiFeo, two years old, died in the East Boston Relief Station as a result of burns caused by her dress catching fire from the kitchen stove in her home at No. 25 Chelsea street, East Boston. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Angelo DiFeo. The child's mother in extinguishing the fire which enveloped her daughter's body, was severely burned about the hands and arms. Picture above is that of Mrs. DiFeo and her daughter.

AUDIENCE SEEKS KICK, EMOTION—PLAYWRIGHT

People lead duller lives than ever before despite the jazz, auto, and radio craze. That accounts for the fact that people are paying high prices for theatre tickets, declares Mrs. Allene Tupper Wilkes, author of one of the most thrilling mystery plays ever written, according to E. E. Clive who is producing her play, "The Creaking Chair," for the first time in America at the Copley Theatre.

"The average man and woman goes to the theatre to experience an emotion, for a thrill, a kick if you will, and, to be more specific, perhaps, to enjoy a little romance second hand," the playwright explained.

MYSTERY MAN HANGS SELF IN CELL

Gave False Address When Arrested as Drunk in Back Bay

Frank J. McCaffrey, sixty years old, address unknown, committed suicide in a cell of the Back Bay police station, early today, by hanging himself with his trousers' belt. He had been arrested three hours previously on the charge of drunkenness.

Lieutenant Francis Mulligan, Patrolmen Klose and Otis, applied the prone method of resuscitation. McCaffrey rallied a little, but died on his way to City Hospital.

McCaffrey, apparently in a happy mood, acted peculiar after his arrest by Patrolman Brown.

When booked, he furnished a home address that has since been investigated, but no one knew him. It was No. 266 Cambridge street Cambridge.

Another clew, an institution mark found inside of the prisoner's hatband, is being investigated. Police say that the mark they find is similar to those put in hats worn at some institution, and that he may have been an inmate.

McCaffrey had but one eye, and his clothes were tattered.

PASTUER TREATMENT ADVISED FOR VICTIM

Word was received by the Lynn police that the dog owned by Miss Abby Burrill, of No. 44 Hanover street, Lynn, which bit Thomas J. Phipps laundryman of No. 46 Eutaw avenue, Lynn, last Saturday, had hydrophobia and Phipps was advised by City Physician M. R. Donovan to take the Pasteur treatment.

BRIG.-GEN. PALMER ILL; DETACHED FROM DUTY

Washington, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Brigadier-General John A. Palmer, closely associated with General Pershing at A. E. F. headquarters in France, has been detached from active duty to await retirement because of failing health. He was taken ill while serving in Panama and is under observation at Walter Reed Hospital. General Palmer framed many provisions of the army re-organization bill and is one of the army's outstanding students on military organization.

Toeing the Mark in Staple Styles

"Should Auld Acquaintance Be Forgot..."

AT A MEETING of our style committee the other day, one of the men said we get so enthusiastic about the new styles we are selling today, that we forget all about the Standard Staple Styles that have SOLD THEMSELVES for years.

He made everybody sit up and take notice when he quoted figures from our records to prove that 50,000 customers come in every year and buy the "Nature's Doctor". 35,000 demand the "Combination Last". 30,000 ask for the "Corona". 20,000 insist on the "Standish". 11,000 come in wearing the "Banker" and ask for another pair—and this is a last that we have had for 30 years.

This means that we have more than 100,000 satisfied customers who buy these five stylish staples every year and refuse to drop an old friend for a new acquaintance. They stopped experimenting when they found they could get Comfort with Style—when they discovered the last that fitted their feet, and gave them satisfactory service—they kept coming back for another pair.

The Regal Platform—"Maker to Wearer"—"One Quality"—"One Profit"—"One Price", is just the same today as it was 35 years ago. That's the reason we can put the Quality in, to bring the customer back.

BUSINESS MEN BACK CASEY CANDIDACY

Jamaica Plain Man Does Not Seek Favor of Any School Association

A hustling committee of business men headed by Mark T. Dowling has been formed to speed up the closing of the campaign of James D. Casey of Jamaica Plain, who seeks one of the five places on the School Committee.

All members of the committee are business men. Several of them have been associated with Mr. Casey in the banking and brokerage business for years. The appeal of the committee to the voters to elect Mr. Casey will be based on the candidate's slogan: "A business man for a business job."

More than $17,000,000 will be expended for Boston's schools this year and a man of the solid far-seeing business type like Candidate Casey should be elected to the board to guarantee the tax payers 100 per cent return for the money disbursed.

In addition to this new business men's committee, many of the most prominent members of the Boston Chamber of Commerce are backing the Casey fight.

Officers of various improvement associations throughout the city have pledged their support.

Candidate Casey does not seek the favor of any school association or other similar body. He has offered to quit the field if the P. S. A. or any other body or individual can prove to his managers that there are in the long list of candidates others better qualified from a business standpoint to handle the millions set aside for our schools.

Members of the executive committee of the Casey Business Men's Committee are: Lawrence J. McCarthy, Griffin S. Fallon, George W. Grimm and Charles F. Connors.

COLLEGE WILL EXPEL AUTO SPEEDERS

Providence Has So Many Accidents to Students Drastic Step Is Taken

Providence, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Recent serious automobile accidents, in which students of Providence College figured, have caused the college authorities to threaten with expulsion students who violate the State laws governing overcrowding and speeding of automobiles.

The State Board of Public Roads has also taken action and has stationed inspectors on the highways leading to and from the college to see that the laws are not violated.

Warnings will be given the students, but if they do not suffice arrests will follow.

The most recent serious accident at the college occurred when Thomas R. Kelly, a freshman, fell from the running board of a machine as it was rounding a curve near the entrance to the campus. He suffered a concussion of the brain.

U. S. Conquers World In Commerce; Europe, Rebuilt, to Stay a Customer

Washington, Oct. 30 (I.N.S.).—America's commercial conquest of the world—to be climaxed in 1925 with a foreign trade close to $10,000,000,000, was described today by Dr. Julius Klein, foreign commerce director for the government, as "the world's greatest business achievement."

In the reconstruction period while Europe has been torn by international quarrels and wars, industries of the United States, have gone steadily ahead until today they occupy a commanding position in every important market.

Klein put in a few words, facts which disclose the commercial ascendency of this country since 1913:

"Foreign commerce of the United States increased between 1913 and 1925 about thirty per cent. That of France increased five per cent. Meanwhile the trade of Britain stands one per cent. under the 1913 totals while Germany is twenty-seven per cent. below the 1913 commerce."

In spite of America's greater advance Klein referred to the recovery of Europe and "revived buying power for our leading customer," as the outstanding factor in international business today.

"Europe's purchases from us this year probably will approach the formidable figure of $2,700,000,000 comprising not only the staple raw materials—wheat, cotton, copper and oil—but a rapidly increasing proportion of fabricated wares," Klein said.

"Even a casual survey of the European business situation brings out the fact that the ground work is laid for an enduring edifice of commercial good will and prosperity."

CARDINAL WILL TELL OF TRIP

Cardinal O'Connell, in a lecture on "The Pilgrimage," will open on November 7 the first of the course of lectures for the current season under the auspices of the League of Catholic Women.

A large audience at the auditorium of Notre Dame college, the Fenway, is expected to hear the Cardinal's account of the pilgrimage he led from this city to Rome last Spring.

A musical program, preceding the lecture, will be offered by Miss Ethel Ormsby Sellinger, soprano, and Miss Blanche B. Pickering, pianist.

EMPLOY HOME TEACHERS SLOGAN OF DONOGHUE

City Councillor John A. Donoghue, speaking at a series of rallies in his campaign for school committee issued a warning to the citizens of Boston that the rights of men and women who were educated in the Boston Schools and who are living in Boston are being imperiled by the wholesale employment of nonresidents in the school department.

J. A. Donoghue

Councillor Donoghue declared that there are thousands of men and women in Boston sufficiently educated to be employed in similar capacity but the positions are given to outsiders.

Buds Have Centre of Stage This Week in Greater Hub

Betty Alden

VERILY the present week is of overwhelmingly bud flavor. Today sees the eagerly anticipated dance for Miss Katherine Dalton and Miss Dorothy Lawrence, with dinners preceding, and Miss Alicia Atkinson's tea staged by her parents, the Robert W. Atkinsons of Brookline.

YESTERDAY A LUNCHEON and dance starred the young set calendar the first hospitality given by Mrs. Edmund F. Leland for her debutante daughter, Miss Elizabeth Leland, at the Country Club, and second a jolly, rather small function (as bud affairs go) given by Mrs. Augustine H. Parker for her daughter, Miss Beatrice A. S. Howell.

ALSO GLEAMING ON the bud list was the small and merry luncheon with Mrs. Nathaniel F. Emmons of Hingham as hostess and Miss Dorothy Lawrence, daughter of the James Lawrences, as guest of honor. Mrs. Emmons was Elizabeth Lawrence, daughter of the late Mrs. James Lawrence.

AT THE CHILTON CLUB earlier in the week, Miss Mary Cushing, Junior League provisional member and daughter of the Harvey Cushings, was the special bud attraction at a luncheon given by Mrs. John F. Fulton, while at the Milton Club Miss Ellen Wales was honored at a similar festivity.

MRS. JOHN P. REYNOLDS entertained for Miss Wales' daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel Wales, formerly of Jamaica Plain, now of the University city. Miss Wales wore a chic brown velvet ensemble for the luncheon, to which some forty or more girls of this and last year were bidden.

FOR MISS CAROLINE LAWRENCE'S tea next Wednesday at the H. Hooper Lawrence Beacon street residence, a coterie of pourers of unusual charm will gather. Miss Sally Dodge, Miss Henrietta Sedgwick, Miss Anne Williams, Miss Helen Streeter, Miss Harriet Mason, Miss Ellen Wales, Miss Christine Reid and Miss Peggy Howe will serve.

MRS. GORHAM BROOKS, whose name lends eclat to many a sponsor list—including that of the ultra chic Senior Supper Dances. Mrs. Brooks was Rosamond Dixey, of Boston and the Berkshire Hills.

MISS RUTH BAYLIES, a much feted bud of the present season, will pour for her sister debutante, and others are Miss Virginia Roberts, Miss Anne Belknap, Miss Helen ackson, Miss Eleanor Frothingham iss Helen Merriam, Miss Ruth ibson, Miss Katherine Howard and iss Cordelia Dumaine, the last a oncord girl.

DAVID BLAIR McCLOSKEY quite enthralled his audience t the Students' Union, on the oc asion of the tea at which Mesdames John G. Palfrey and E'win Farn am Greene presided over the tea ups. Other distinguished hostesses were Mrs. Frederick S. Converse, Mrs. Edward C. Streeter and Mrs. Henry L. Mason.

They send from afar for Plastics

THAYER McNEIL, a New England institution, is known in far-away places for its Plastic footwear. The message of the comfort in these famous shoes has spread amazingly by word of mouth, as our mail order records will prove.

Yet there are thousands of men and women within easy reach of a Thayer McNeil store who could avoid, help, or cure foot troubles by wearing Plastics. This advertisement is their invitation to call.

INN WAITRESS SENT HER 'LOVE' TO DR. BUSH

Letters Read at Will Trial Declare She Liked Him "Just for Himself"

"I like you for yourself and not what I get out of you," Mabel, a waitress at Phillips' Inn, Andover, wrote to the late D. J. Foster Bush, Andover physician, whose will is being contested in Salem Court, today.

Although protesting that her friendship was not based on mercenary motives, Mabel naively wrote she was looking forward to their Montrael trip and hoped it would turn out all right.

Unfortunately for Mabel, the letter was intercepted by Miss Theoda Bush, one of the doctor's daughters, who received the bulk of the estate and who was the chief witness today.

Miss Bush testified that two letters from Mabel to the physician were intercepted at the "Retreat," a Hartford sanatarium where Dr. Bush was a voluntary inmate, and were forwarded to her.

The first letter read:

"Dear Dr. B. I saw your letter here on the table to Mary Symonds I thought it was for her, but was glad it was for me. Taffeta is $ per yard and it takes five yards to make a dress. But if you think my friendship is based on mercenary motives, I would rather you did not send the silk. I like you for yourself and not what I get out of you.

WITH HER "IN THOUGHTS."

"You are with me always in thought—wish you were with me in person. Were you feeling a little peeved when you wrote me last week? id I say anything to hurt? I will look forward with pleasure to our Montreal trip. I hope it will turn out alright.

"If you think it too expensive, do not take it to please me. Any place you care to go will be alright. With much love. Lovingly, M. B."

In the second letter Mabel wrote:

"I am glad my visit to you Monday made you fel better—I feel better too. Please destroy this letter. Believe me I care for you, or I should not have dared go to your rooms Monday. I will try and get off Saturday. Lovingly, Mabel."

The will is being contested by rMs. Ella F. von Zandeffy, who received the income from a $30,000 trust fund, and her two children $500 each, the principal reverting to them upon the death of their mother. Miss Bush received approximately $100,000.

I WARNED DOCTOR OF GIRL.

Attorney Sherman Whipple, for Mrs. Zandeffy, was caustic in his cross-examination of Miss Bush, concerning her interception of her father's personal mail.

"Do you think you did right in intercepting the letters?" asked Mr. Whipple.

"Yes, perfectly right," Miss Bush responded.

"Don't you think it was wrong to withhold the letters from your father?" questioned the attorney.

"No, although it might have been mildly wrong," she replied.

Miss Bush told the jury that when her fother lived with her at Wellesley, she frequently had remonstrated with him concerning his dealings with "Mabel."

Continuing her testimony, Miss Bush said she succeeded in persuading her father to move to Wellesley in order to "get away from Mabel." Upon her arrival at Wellesley, she stated, a letter addressed to her father awaited him, and was not transmitted.

INTERCEPTED CASH GIFTS.

Concerning alleged sums of money sent by the aged physician to "Mabel" Mr. Whipple elicited from Miss Bush that she stopped two letters one containing a check for $50, the other $50 in currency.

The daughter admitted that she dexterously returned the cash to the physician without his knowledge of the fact. The check for $50 was exhibited in court today.

There was no foundation to the allegations of a certain Mrs. Woo of Brookline, an old family friend and patient of the physician, the two women were allowed to see her father at the retreat without a written order from her, Miss Bush declared on the stand.

Previous testimony had brought out the fact that an order was necessary for feminine visitation to Dr. Bush.

FLED HIS HOME BECAUSE WIFE HAD PISTOL

East Boston Man, Contesting Divorce, Says Mate Went to Dances

Declaring he was afraid of the smell of powder and that he left the house when he saw his wife's sister pass her a revolver and six cartridges, Luigi DeAngelis, thirty-five, of East Boston, contesting the divorce suit of his wife, Amelia, thirty, of Somerville, testified in Middlesex Superior Court, East Cambridge, today, that his wife went out nights too frequently.

Mrs. DeAngelis charges cruel and abusive treatment. She had previously testified that her husband, on one occasion, hit her over the head with a lantern. ulgi, on the stand today, denied this. He said he remained home nights to care for the three children while she went out to dances and good times.

His wife, he said, listened "too much to the neighbors."

Regarding the revolver incident, DeAngelis said that, glancing through a door, he saw the gun passed and left the house at once. He declared he had fired a revolver at a party with a friend once and had been afraid of powder since. He remained away that night, he said, but returned the next day. Finding the gun he broke it and took out the cartridges.

A postcard to his wife written in endearing terms and signed "M. J. M." was admitted in evidence, as well as the gun and cartridge testimony. "M. J. M.," DeAngelis said, was a friend of his. He said he worked every day and up to last August gave his wife his money for the support of the children, the oldest of which is ten.

GIRL, 23, HELD AS 'QUEEN' OF AUTO THIEVES

New York, Oct. 31 (I.N.S.)—Greenwich Village, New York's Bohemia, missed its "Princess of Wales" today.

The "Princess," pretty Jacqueline Rogers, twenty-three-year-old, who dresses in a skirt resembling a pair of knickerbockers, a coat and vest, soft shirt and a Prince of Wales hat was under arrest charged with being the queen of an auto-stealing gang. Police said she has stolen 40 automobiles in the last ten months.

It took Detective William Busby many nights disguised as a Greenwich Village sheik before he arrested Jacqueline. Police said one of her subjects, Edward Kenyon, squealed on her.

G. F. LEDUC APPOINTED COMMERCIAL AGENT

This office was created to facilitate fast freight service between these points in connection with the New Haven road on shipments West. Mr. LeDuc has been with the Boston and Maine since 1913 in the traffic department.

ENROPE BILLIARD CHAMP NEAR DEATH IN U. S. CRASH

Pittsburgh, Oct. 30 (I.N.S.)—Edouard Horemans of Belgium, holder of the 18.2 balk line billiard championship of Europe, was recovering today from the effects of an automobile accident which almost cost him his life. A small steel cable prevented Horeman's car from hurling over a high embankment in the Allegheny Mountains when he was crowded off the snow-covered highway near Latrobe, Pa.

N. E. APPLE AND FRUIT SHOW DECLARED BEST

The annual exposition and fruit show of the New England Apple and Fruit Show, Inc., at Horticultural Hall, was today declared by many prominent growers and agriculturists the best in its history. Loud in praise was Alfred W. Lombard of the division of fairs, Massachusetts Department of Agriculture. All the fruit on display at the exposition was raised in New England.

New features are an exhibit of cranberries by Lucian J. Fosdick, carver and a competition among growers for the best wayside stand of fruit. A banquet will be held at the Copley-Plaza tonight.

BULGAR HOMES PILLAGED BY GREEK TROOPS

Sofia Files New Charges With League, Following Withdrawal of Invaders

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 30 (A.P.)—The Sofia newspapers print columns of "eye witness" stories today charging that the withdrawal of the Greek troops from Bulgarian soil was marked by scenes of pillage and destruction.

According to these accounts the Greeks took away food and clothing, even furniture and household utensils, in some cases leaving behind them only the bare walls of the homes they had looted.

At the Foreign Office it is declared that Bulgaria will insist before the League of Nations Council that Greece make reparation not only for the lives lost—most of these, it is alleged, being civilians—but also for all property destroyed or stolen.

With this end in view the Allied military attaches who supervised the evacuation were asked to take careful note of the activities of the departing Greeks. The Special Commission appointed to investigate the border trouble will report back to the League of Nations at the December meeting.

Kills 140 Rattlers in Her Battle for Life

FORT LUPTON, Colo., Oct 30. (A.P.).—Mrs. H. H. Slauterback, wife of a rancher near here, killed 140 rattlesnakes with a club in a two-hour battle for her life and that of her three-year-old child.

Mrs. Slauterback said she was riding horseback through a pasture on her husband's ranch and was carrying her child. Dismounting to open a gate, she heard the warning rattle and saw a snake nearby. She picked up a stick and killed it.

Immediately a second snake appeared, then a third. They came by twos, threes, fours and finally by the dozen, she said.

In a few minute she was hemmed in by scores of angry serpents, while her baby clung to the horse nearby.

Frantically wielding the club, she disposed of snakes as they came within reach. Mrs. Slauterback was not bitten. Two ranchers went to the scene and verified Mrs. Slauterback's story. Photographs also have been taken as evidence of the adventure.

MARINES HELD; ALLEGE THEFT AT DRY DOCK

Five Were on Guard at So. Boston When Civilian Suspects Were Taken

Five marines are confined to quarters at Charlestown Navy Yard and three civilians are awaiting trial in South Boston district court in conection with an alleged attempt at theft of material from South Boston dry dock.

Captain J. A. McNulty of the U. S. Marine Corps, stationed at the Charlestown Navy Yard, went to the dry dock on a tour of inspection and there saw a loaded truck containing about 8,000 pounds of reclaimed material, including copper wire and junk. With the truck he found John Jaeglinski, Albert Bornstein, Warren street, Allston, and Jacob Bornstein of Sylvester street, Lexington.

He recognized the material as some that came from the Victory Bridge at Squantum. The three civilians were taken to Station Six and the marines, including the corporal, who were on guard at the dock were taken to the Navy Yard. The load on the truck was valued at $300.

In South Boston Court today the three civilians were charged with larceny of the cable. Their cases were continued for a week. No charges have been preferred against the marines although they are technically in custody.

MANY VISITING MASONS AT CONCLAVE

With visitors from several other States as their guests the Grand Commandary of Massachusetts and Rhode Island has held its annual conclave at the Masonic Temple.

Among prominent Masons present were: Very Eminent Sir George J. Dunbaugh, past grand commander of Illinois, representing the grand master of the Grand Encampment of the United States; Right Eminent Sirs Frank M. Dunbaugh, past grand commander of Grand Commandery of New York; Thomas E. McDonald, grand commander of Grand Commandery of Maine; Oscar Aldrich, grand commander of Grand Commandery of New Hampshire.

W. W. Ellis, grand commander of Grand Commandery of New York; Thomas Shipley, grand commander of Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania; Aaron H. Grout, grand commander of Grand Commandery of Vermont, and Arthur I. Lee, grand standard bearer of the Grand Commandery of New York.

De Molay Commandery, K. T., Em Sir Walter A. Smith, commander, put on the inspection and review giving a fine exemplification of the work. This commandery was selected out of 53 listed. Em Sir Fred M. Goodwin assisted Commander Smith as captain and Em Sir Theodore R. Lockwood as lieutenant of the guards. Em Sir George T. Everett was master of ceremonies. A large amount of preparatory work was done by these men, resulting in a smoothness that won general approval.

The election of Grand Commandery officers resulted as follows:

Rt. Em. Sir Clarence M. Dunbar of Providence, grand commander; V. Em. Sir James A. Gunn, deputy grand commander; Em. Sir Norris G. Abbott of Providence, grand generalissimo; Em. Sir Clarence E. Burleigh of Boston, grand captain general; Em. Sir Charles F. White of Malden, grand senior warden; Em. Sir Frederick Huntington Briggs of Boston, grand junior warden;

Sirs Richard C. de Normandie of Boston, Frank W. Dobson of Lowell, Harold W. Sprague of Brockton and Martin Pleschinger of Chelsea, division commanders; Em. Sir Benjamin F. Downing, 3d, of Newport, grand standard bearer; Em. Sir George E. Dodd of Wrentham, grand sword bearer; Em. Sir George E. Sykes of Attleboro, grand warder; Em. Sir Charles E. Marshall of Melrose, grand captain of the guards.

AILES, FAMOUS BANKER, DEAD

Washington, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Milton E. Ailes, president of the Riggs National Bank, one of the largest financial institutions of the East, died suddenly today of heart failure at his Summer home near Harpers Ferry, W. Va.

Ailes came to Washington from Shelby County, Ohio, a score of years ago. He got a job as a day laborer in the Treasury Department and studied the rudiments of finance while he did chores around the building.

When Lyman J. Gage became Secretary of the Treasury he recommended Ailes to President McKinley as assistant secretary, a post which he held until he went into banking.

In the celebrated row between the Riggs Bank and the Treasury Department under Secretary McAdoo's administration, Ailes was one of the storm centres and bore the brunt of the fight for the bank. The strain affected his heart and he had not been a well man since. He is survived by a widow and children.

MEDFORD BANS CRAZY QUILT UNIFORMS

"Shed Your Coats of Many Cuts and Dress Alike" to Be Council Order

Not only have Medford's pavement policemen exercised their own [illegible] for these many years, but they have exercised their own predilections in the matter of the mode. That was [illegible] when the Medford [illegible] more [illegible].

From the time the first [illegible] tered [illegible] its blue and toothsome fame over the initial run of Medford's famed brand, the prima donnas of peace in Medford's highways have arrayed themselves officially according to their own will and wallet.

Blue—but not Baby or Alice—was the only order and the maestros of the [illegible] ran the gamut of the [illegible] in strange and weird fashion [illegible].

CRAZY QUILT COPS.

Unrestricted [illegible] they as to cut and pattern [illegible] the result was as fine a [illegible] of [illegible] uniforms as [illegible] assembled [illegible].

[illegible] like a line up of uniformed [illegible] a [illegible] convention with cities represented from Akron to Ze[illegible].

They were [illegible] of Detroit.

Some [illegible] with coats with gussets [illegible] and some had short [illegible] that [illegible] a tuck [illegible].

The [illegible] of the trousers ran from fourteen [illegible] at the cuff to the [illegible]. It was a dream of [illegible] with [illegible].

Chapeaux ranged from chasseur to Scotch, but few were [illegible]. But they all had [illegible] and top.

UNIFORM REAL DISGUISE.

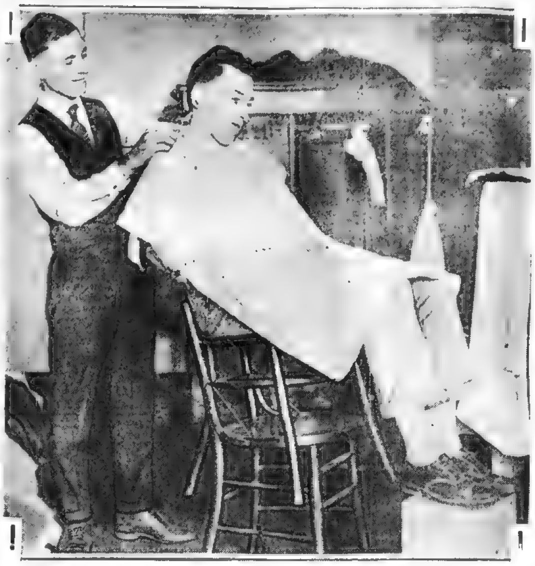
A cop meeting a cop in any Medford [illegible] was [illegible] to give the countersign to identify himself as one of the brothers, for the uniform never told.

Sometimes a cop was mistaken for a visiting fireman and the populace [illegible] fled for smoke.

It was [illegible] because of the varied uniform that these troubles came to be and to the rescue of law and order in uniforms Aldermen C. J. Powers and J. J. Nicholson came today with action to have one standard type of cop uniform with the city helping to pay the bill.

The aldermen will act at the next meeting.

PRIVATE BARBER OF STUDENTS



Lotus W. Reneau, a Southerner, is seeking a degree in theology at Boston University with the funds he earned being barber extraordinary to his classmates. Here he's shown wielding the clippers on A. M. B. Snapp in his "shop."

PARKER HOUSE HOUR STRIKES AT BIG GAME

Day Yale and Harvard Play Is Last for Historic Hub Hostelry

The final whistle of the Harvard-Yale football game two weeks from tomorrow also will be the final [illegible] for the old Parker House, historic hostelry of Boston for years.

The old Parker House is to be torn down to make way for a new Parker House, and the demolishing work is to be started about the first of December.

Originally it had been planned to tear the old hotel down earlier in the season, but it was decided to postpone the work until after the Harvard-Yale game to take care of the large crowds expected here for the battle.

FOR COLDS

STUDENT NOW BARBER TO WIN DEGREES

For some it was a close shave to get through college, but the kind of boy that shaves himself through and hones as well as [illegible] is Lotus Reneau from the [illegible] South—a theology student at Boston University.

Down on the hill of Mt. Vernon street, behind the State House, Lotus, who is called "Leo" for some reason by his fellow students, is shaving daily and shaving all [illegible] the place.

Also he is cutting hair. In fact, Lotus is doing all round tonsorial work on the theology students—and thus getting through college by many close shaves.

An adept at the tools that work havoc with the facial greenery is Lotus, for he has been doing plain and fancy gardening on countenances since he first began in high school—down theah'.

At Birmingham, Ala., his home town, Lotus shaved an A. B. degree from Birmingham South College.

Before that he honed and honed until he had completed a year at Oklahoma College in Oklahoma City.

Beating about the bushes, Lotus happened upon information that strong beards and rapid ones, as well as curly locks and luxuriant, are a main crop among Boston students and that sometimes a careless boy doesn't even have to wear a collar.

Therefore Lotus came North and whacked up his razors and cleaned the clippers. Now a sign in the B. U. Theology School tells all the wearers of facial fur that shaves are fifteen cents and haircuts and razors honed two bits per cut or hone.

Lotus is blooming.

THUG SLAIN, OFFICER HIT WHEN GANG FIGHTS COPS

Jersey City, Oct. 30 (A.P.)—An unidentified gunman was killed and Lieutenant Emil Fuhrman in [illegible] city today during a gun battle between three police officers and [illegible] gunmen. Just before he [illegible] Lieutenant Fuhrman was [illegible] critically wounded. The [illegible] followed a chase which [illegible] ended when the gunmen's car overturned. They had previously [illegible] up a woolen truck. Four of the men were captured.

WILLIAM G. CLYDE TO HEAD CARNEGIE STEEL

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.)—William G. FINE ARTS THEATRE TO REOPEN TOMORROW

The Fine Arts Theatre, located in the State Theatre block on Massachusetts avenue, will reopen its doors for the coming season tomorrow with two performances of Tony Sarg's Marionettes. The matinee performance will offer "The Pied Piper of Hamelin" while the evening performance will be given over to Robert Louis Stevenson's literary classic "Treasure Island."

The appearance of this famous band of puppeteers will mark their only performances in Boston.

An outstanding feature of both pr[illegible] [illegible] musical accompaniments given by members of the company.

"Jealousy has a lot to do with clothes when you haven't got 'em."

When you know your clothes are thin and shabby and you see your pale dressed warm and snappy, and you lack the ready cash to buy a "front"—the whole world seems wrong. You're unhappy and blue and lack confidence—that means a lot to you. But why these weeps? You don't need cash. Your credit is good here. So, if your name is Mary, take a look at our smart styles in ladies' fur trimmed coats at $35.00 up.

And if your name is John, come in and see the collegiate styles in men's suits and overcoats at $30.00 to $50.00.

Then—Pay as you say! One, two, three, four or five dollars a week. Sounds fair, doesn't it? It is. We are a reputable house that will serve you honestly and confidentially.

CANADA TORIES LACK FIVE OF MAJORITY

Liberals Expect Late Returns Will Show Votes to Hold Them in Power

Ottawa, Oct. 30 (A P.)—Premier King, Liberal, definitely denied this afternoon rumors that he had decided to place his resignation in the hands of the Governor-general. "When all the returns are in," he said "I intend to discuss the situation with the Governor-general, and I shall then make a statement of my intentions.

Returns received up to early this afternoon give the Conservative following as 118, or five short of the 123 necessary for a clear majority in the next House. There are still twelve seats to be heard from. The Liberals early today claimed ninety-seven seats and the Progressives seventeen.

Late returns apparently caused a change in sentiment in Liberal circles. When word of the Conservative opposition's gains in the Maritime Provinces and in Ontario came, followed by news of the successive defeats of nine cabinet ministers, the prevailing impression was that Premier King would resign.

Prominent Liberals regarded the figures as they stood this afternoon as not implying any such necessity. Should the Conservatives under Rt Hon. Arthur Meighen fail to add materially to the 118 seats now in their column, the Liberals say, they would be out-numbered by the Liberals and other parties.

If Meighen fails to secure a clear majority, it is declared, Premier King will probably decide to meet Parliament and challenge a vote of confidence on the issue of high tariff. The Liberals believe all members of the House not definitely aligned with Mr. Meighen will go with the government on such a vote, especially as there would be no desire to force a second general election within a few months.

Meighen declined to make any statement until the returns were complete

WOMAN, ACTIVE AT 102, RECALLS EGGS AT 3 CENTS

Elgin, Ill., Oct. 30 (A P.)—Mrs Kate Shields, mother of sixty-eight year-old twin sons, observed her one hundred and second birthday anniversary today

Born in Ireland October 30, 1823, Mrs. Shields came to America in 1843 when butter was selling for six cents a pound and eggs for three cents a dozen. She is still very active and reads the newspapers.

Bombers 5000 Feet In Air Get Perfect Score At Mark

Washington, Oct. 30. (A.P.)—A new record for accuracy in bombing has been established at Langley Field by Lieutenant C. S. Shankle and Levi Beery of the Army Air Service in scoring seven hits with 100-pound practice bombs out of nine dropped from an altitude of 5,000 feet

The two bombs which missed the target struck close by and were rated as constructive hits making practically a perfect score

Beery was the pilot of the plane and Shankle the bomber.

DEMOCRATS TO HONOR TRAYNOR

"Pie" Traynor, Somerville's noted ball player, rated as the greatest third baseman in the game today will come into his own tonight at the Somerville High School Auditorium, where he will be honored by the Democrats of Somerville for his great work in the recent World's Series games.

"Stuffy" McInnis, the Gloucester boy, a teammate of Pie's, will also be on hand to do his bit in honoring Traynor, who will be presented with a token of the esteem in which he is held by his friends

John J. Murphy, Democratic candidate for Mayor, will make the presentation

Former Senator David I. Walsh will also be a guest, as will all the Democratic candidates for the school committee and board of aldermen. Arthur D. Healy, chairman of the Democratic City Committee, will preside

LYING PARENTS SCORED IN TALK TO TEACHERS

Parents who supply lying excuses to account for the absence of their children from school came in for criticism today from Cameron Beck personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange, addressing the high school division of the Middlesex County Teachers' Association at its seventy-first annual meeting in the State House. He declared such parents had lost the ideals which make for the integrity of home life

NATIVES RENEW ATTACKS ON DAMASCUS

French Troops Battle to Defend City; General Sarrail Is Recalled to Paris

Washington, Oct. 30 (A.P.)—Estimates placing property damage during the French bombardment of Damascus at $10,000,000 and the loss of life at 1,000 persons, have reached Washington, but there have been no official reports of Americans among the killed and injured. Claims will be filed for any damage done American property, it is said.

Paris, Oct. 30 (I N S).—Djebel Druze tribesmen have renewed their attacks upon Damascus, according to dispatches received by the foreign office today.

General Sarrail, French high commissioner, has wired that a column under command of General Gamelin is under attack from the Druzes on the outskirts of Damascus, but is holding out and is defending the city with slight losses

This news came just after it was learned that Commissioner Sarrail had been relieved of his post and ordered to Paris to face a hearing on the recent shelling of Damascus

Following his habit for several months of making brief and inadequate reports to the French Government Sarrail has not yet sent any comprehensible account of the Damascus incident. The information in the hands of the French Government is limited to newspaper accounts from London

A wave of bitter indignation is sweeping over the Paris press. L'Intransigeant says

"There has never been such a scandal in the history of France."

L'Echo de Paris describes General Sarrail as "a senile, stupid brutal sadist, a criminal, a bloody tyrant"

Le Journal des Debats accuses the Masonic Grand Lodge and former Premier Herriot of hushing up the Sarrail scandal, while Le Matin says—

"General Sarrail acts as if he is deliberately attempting to ruin France's reputation and prestige"

Johnson [illegible] his face [illegible] spectators. He looked [illegible] older than when arrested Monday

Twenty-one girls were [illegible] by Johnson, according to the prosecutor who said he has affidavits to that effect. These girls will be called before the Grand Jury

He was very friendly to me [illegible] lately when he started to talk [illegible] said the Sullivan girl

She told the judge she had [illegible] fidence in Johnson until she heard from other girls that he told them about her

She explained that each week Johnson compiled horoscopes showing the past, present and future of each girl at the home

Those who got "bad" horoscopes were anxious to get back into the superintendent's good graces, she said, and did anything he told them to do

Counsel for Johnson sought to show how the Johnson [illegible] hugged and kissed the girls in a fatherly manner

Elizabeth jumped to her feet with an [illegible] denial

Johnson's face was ashen. His wife who came to the courtroom did not enter the judge's chambers and did not hear the [illegible] against her husband

Easy Terms Without Any Extra Charge

Every Suite Made to Order

Note the webbing construction. It is double tacked on extra heavy frames in staggered fashion to prevent sagging.

The selected kiln-dried hardwood frames are glued, double doweled with four-inch corner block construction, making it absolutely rigid.

Only the finest materials are used throughout in the construction of this suite, such as B. F. M. webbing, linen stitching twine, oil-tempered springs and flax tying twine.

The covering is the finest yarn-dyed jacquard or Baker's cut velour in all the new shades.

The loose cushion seats are upholstered on both sides to match suite, giving double the length of service. Each cushion is filled with 30 oil-tempered springs, each spring sewed in individual muslin pockets and padded with cotton felt. This insures comfort and durability.

(NOTE—These suites are covered all over—fronts, sides and backs—with either yarn-dyed jacquard or Baker's cut velour.)

Choice of Three Color Combinations---

Rose and Taupe---Blue and Taupe---Rose and Steel

Just the opportunity you have been waiting for. A beautiful overstuffed suite such as you would be proud to show your friends at a price you can easily afford to pay—and on unusually easy credit terms without extra charge.

Three massive pieces with large rolling arms covered all over in the finest jacquard or Baker's cut velour. This suite is unusually elegant in design; the solid, hardwood frames are fashioned in Queen Anne design; reversible loose spring-filled cushions, spring arms, spring backs and spring edges, web bottoms, and represents the highest type of workmanship and materials throughout. Silk tassels add to its beauty. These suites may be had in a plain or figured mohair at a correspondingly low price.

These suites are all made to your order and delivery will be made in the order purchased. An early purchase means an early delivery.

Bond's clothes are tailored from woolens—which, under ordinary conditions, would enter into the making of the highest grade custom tailored clothes. Absolutely all wool fabrics—from America's foremost mills. Every Bond garment is built by expert tailors in our own factories and other factories whose operations are controlled by us.

It means that every seam is given our special "strength test"—it means that every coat collar is hand felled and hand shaped—it must hug the neck!—it means many other important hand operations that were formerly only part and parcel of a custom tailored garment—it means greater beauty than appears on the surface—for Bond's quality is imbedded in every hidden part of every Bond garment.

To appreciate Bond' Tailored Clothes — t know how well the fit—you must actuall slide into a Bond gar ment.
Let Bond's Clothe tell their own story— then you'll agree tha never before hav clothes so moderatel priced displayed suc satisfactory result from every angle.

Topcoats and Overcoats

Bond's is by no means an ordinary clothing store. It is one of our growing chain of distributing stations where the output of great factories is sold direct to the wearer. Naturally we do a tremendous volume of business. Bond's quality at Bond's low prices means an ever increasing business.

We are one of the largest buyers of quality woolens in America.

We have steady work for our tailors and, therefore, have the BEST in the business. We eliminate all the old-fashioned roundabout methods—and because we save in SELLING you save in BUYING.

PIMPERNEL and ROSEMARY by Baroness Orczy

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN
A HOME PAPER FOR PEOPLE WHO THINK
BOSTON, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 30, 1925

SECOND SECTION

Somebody had been lying; Rosemary knew that much.

"At any rate, I am able to walk to the frontier," she said, and showed her scorn by a shrug.

(Copyright, 192[illegible], George H. Doran.)

CHAPTER XXIX.

A FEW minutes went by, and presently Rosemary saw Jasper coming back, accompanied by the guard.

"What is it, Jasper?" she called. "Where are we, and what has happened?"

The two men had come to a halt immediately beneath her window. The guard doffed his cap at sight of her, and scratched his head in obvious perplexity.

"We are at Sot, my darling, but I have bad news for you, I am afraid," Jasper said. "There has been a very serious landslide lower down the line, and of course there will be considerable delay. I don't understand all the man says, but it seems

It's a part of masculine vanity to pretend there are certain things men understand that women never can. (Men are all alike in this.) When my husband told me he thought it would be much easier for me to do my shopping through the classified columns of the paper by going over and checking off the things I wanted the way he did when he wanted a used car or help for his office, I never told him that I had been doing this long before he was able to have a car or hire help, but I did agree with him that it certainly seemed reasonable and I would try it. Well I did look and found three real bargains and you can find them, too, by looking on the

OFFICIALS AIDING AUTO SAVE-A-LIFE DRIVE

SAVE-A-LIFE!

Every effort is being made to drive the "speed maniac" and the "road hog" from the highways of Massachusetts, according to Frank A. Goodwin, Registrar of Motor Vehicles.

The municipal and state police of other states of New England are also attempting to rid their communities of these death-delivering pests—but a police officer can't be assigned to watch each automobile to be found on the highways.

The solution of auto traffic lies entirely within the power of each individual driver. It is up to him or her to [illegible] it [illegible].

SLOW DOWN!

"It is far more important to slow down than it is to sound a horn, but it is better to do both. Twenty per cent of all accidents happen at intersecting ways," says Registrar Goodwin.

"The operator who does not slow down on approaching a cross street is flirting with death! Slow down! This law must be enforced," he declares.

Yesterday [illegible] eight-year-old Celia [illegible] of No. 2 Nichols place, Cambridge, was severely crushed by an auto truck while on her way to school with a group of other children.

Regardless as to whether this little girl, who is in a very serious condition, [illegible] the driver of the truck was at fault, through thoughtlessness, carelessness or neglect, the fact still remains that the child has a fractured skull.

More [illegible] to the [illegible] children who must go out onto the streets on their way to and from school and greater [illegible] on the part of [illegible] who, [illegible] or going through crowded sections, would [illegible] and [illegible] of keeping sorrow from the hearts of [illegible] throughout the country who [illegible] their loved ones, yearly.

TRUCK DRIVER HELD FOR DEATH OF BOY

James Goggin, 8, son of Mrs. Delia Goggin, of No. 183 Rutherford avenue, Charlestown, was struck and killed by an automobile as he ran across the street in front of No. 212 Main street, Charlestown.

According to police, the boy ran from behind a machine directly in the path of a truck operated by Joseph L. Juliano of No. 147 Cottage street, East Boston, a chauffeur for the Bonnano Steam Laundry Company of 12-13 Foster Wharf.

The boy was taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital in the truck, and was pronounced dead on arrival. His mother was notified and Juliano was placed under arrest at Station 15 on a charge of manslaughter.

SEQUEL TO THE CANDY CHAT

I THINK candy making must be just as popular as it was when I went to school, for I have had a great number of lovely letters from some of our youngest members as well as our older ones on last week's candy chat. I hope the sequel today will prove equally as interesting.

First I want to give you a recipe for pineapple puffs which are easily made and delicious.

Recipe No. 1781

PINEAPPLE PUFFS.

1 cup sugar.
1 cup [illegible] syrup.
1 [illegible] water
Whites 2 eggs
[illegible] canned pineapple
½ teaspoon pineapple extract

Put sugar, [illegible] syrup and water in saucepan, stir until dissolved, bring to boiling point, wipe in cold water and cook until it forms a hard ball in cold water. Stir candy slightly until it begins to look cloudy, slowly while beating constantly, pour half the syrup on the lightly beaten eggs, then immediately pour the egg mixture into the remaining syrup and beat. Add pineapple extract and candied pineapple and continue beating until mixture is stiff enough to hold its shape. Push from spoon with a fork on wax paper in little mounds and leave until firm.

Recipe No. 1782

NUT CHOCOLATE CARAMELS.

3 tablespoons butter.
½ cup cream.
[illegible]
1 cup molasses
4 squares unsweetened chocolate.
½ teaspoon vanilla
1 cup chopped walnuts.

Melt butter in an iron kettle, and add cream, sugar and molasses. Bring to the boiling point, and add melted chocolate. Continue the boiling, stirring constantly until a firm ball may be formed when the mixture is tried in cold water. Add vanilla and nut meats and turn into a buttered pan, having the mixture ¾ inch in depth. When nearly cold, cut in cubes, using scissors or a sharp knife. Wrap in squares of wax paper, and put in a cold place to harden.

Recipe No. 1783

CANDIED CRANBERRIES.

1 cup sugar.
½ cup water
1 cup cranberries.

[illegible] cranberries wash, dry and prick two or three times with needle. Boil sugar and water until it spins a thread, put in cranberries, and cook gently until syrup will jelly when tested from tip of spoon. Remove berries, one at a time, to wax paper and let stand in the air until well dried. Roll in granulated sugar, and use like candied cherries.

Some of the most delicious candy received from last month's contest was candied grapefruit and I am sure you will have good luck with this recipe.

Recipe No. 1784

CANDIED GRAPEFRUIT PEEL.

Wash and wipe three thick-skinned grapefruit, and remove the peel in six sections lengthwise of fruit. Soak over night in 1 quart of cold water to which is added 1 tablespoon salt. Drain, put in saucepan, cover with cold water, and bring to boiling point, repeat this process three times, cooking in the last water until peel is soft and tender. Drain, and cut with scissors into thin narrow strips. Weigh the peel. Put an equal weight of sugar into a saucepan add ⅓ a cup, bring syrup to boiling point, add the peel, and cook until it is clear. Remove each piece separately. Drain and place on a plate to cool, then roll each piece in powdered sugar, and spread out to dry. When thoroughly dried store in glass jars.

Campfire Marshmallow Fudge Cake

Cream 2 tbsp. butter and 2 cups sugar, add 4 squares bitter chocolate, melted. Put yolks of 2 eggs in cup, add milk to make 1½ cups. Add milk and 2 cups cake flour alternately, stirring in two tsp. baking powder. Add ¼ tsp. salt. Beat whites of eggs and fold in. Bake in 3 square pans lined with oiled paper.

While cake is baking, cut 45 marshmallows in four pieces each (15 marshmallows for each layer.) Remove cakes from tins as soon as they come from the oven. Place marshmallows immediately between and on top of the cakes. The heat of the cakes will cause them to melt slightly and adhere to the cake. Cover with Fudge Frosting.

Make this Wonderful Cake Today

Just to look at this cake makes you hungry. A rich brown fudge cake with a deep filling of fluffy white goodness. Campfire Marshmallows are specially prepared for use in foods. Correct in flavor. Correct in texture. They add a touch of daintiness to many foods.

Sold in economical sized packages and from sanitary 5 lb. tins. Write for free Campfire Recipe Book.

Will Consecrate Self to Boston, Says O'Neil

By JOSEPH H. O'NEIL.

I had no idea three weeks ago that I would be a candidate for the office of Mayor of the City of Boston. I was taken off my feet when I was requested by men like General Edward L. Logan, General Charles H. Cole, John F Fitzgerald, William A Gaston, Martin M Lomasney, William C. Prout and numbers of others to make the fight. I felt it a call to duty.

Joseph H. O'Neil

I was told that because I had always been a supporter of Mayor Curley and had been a close personal friend of Mr. Kelliher, Mr. W. T. A. Fitzgerald and Mr. Campbell, that my candidacy would help to solve a very disagreeable situation in the Democratic party.

It was therefore not because of any ambition of mine—although no man will be more proud of the [illegible] Mayor of Boston than I will be—but because of a sense of public duty to the party that had done so much for me and to the City that I love so much that I decided to make the run.

WONDERFUL CITY.

Boston is a wonderful city. I believe there is no place like it in the world. It has a history that is appealing to mankind. Here the early struggles of the Revolutionary took place. The Old State House is here, where freedom was born and Faneuil Hall, where it was cradled.

The whole story of Boston is filled with deeds of men and women who have blazoned the path that others might have a better life

If I am elected Mayor of Boston it will be my ambition to move along these lines.

I have been reading in the Boston American for the past year or more for a greater New England. I believe the hour has arrived, and if the people of Boston, Massachusetts and New England will work together we will see a greater and a happier people than ever before. It rests with ourselves.

RESOURCES FOR GREATNESS.

We have the climate; we have the money; we have the labor, we have the history; we have the manpower and the woman power and all that is required is purpose and spirit on the part of the people to make Boston and Massachusetts and New England greater than ever

I will be glad to join in this greater New England movement with the Governors of all the New England States and do everything in my power to realize their fondest hopes.

For Strict Enforcement of Law, Says Nichols

By MALCOLM E. NICHOLS

All of the candidates for Mayor say they are honest and capable, for the moment I am willing to take their word for it, in order that we may proceed to more specific topics.

Malcolm E. Nichols

While Mayor, I shall not be a candidate for any other office. When I was United States Collector of Internal Revenue, more than seven hundred millions of dollars passed through my hands. When I became a candidate for Mayor I resigned from that great federal office I did not take it with me into the turmoil of a municipal campaign

As Mayor, I shall continue a policy which has brought me great success, that of paying close attention to the business of my office. I shall plan for more streets, better streets, cleaner streets, better repaired streets, better lighted streets better policed streets

IMPROVE SERVICE.

I shall plan for an improvement in the collection of garbage and ashes, for better cooperation between the municipal administration and the two hundred thousand homes which it must serve.

While I am mayor no city employee need fear discharge because of his political views He will receive a square deal and he should give the city a square deal.

When I am Mayor, I shall afford more adequate protection to life and property by providing additional police officers.

ENFORCE STATUTES.

The Boston Charter is an instrument embodying certain administrative principles. I stand for thorough compliance with those principles I shall enforce every statute, State or Federal, which it may be my duty to enforce as chief magistrate of this city

I favor strict enforcement of the law. A city government made prosperous by wise planning and far sighted management will inspire confidence and command support It will make Boston powerful in its control of her own affairs We shall secure Home Rule

The City of Boston is one of the richest corporations in the world. In public ownership, she has property valued at more than three hundred million dollars and has taxable valuation of over two billions The people of this city as well as every other city in the country, business men and wage earners alike must awaken to the fact that running a city is a business. City government is today the biggest business in this country

Give Younger Element Opportunity; McGauley

By WALTER C. McGAULEY.

I have repeatedly stated and I want to reiterate at this time that I think the chief issue in this campaign [illegible] issue is the ability of the man who is to be chosen as [illegible] next mayor of Boston. When selecting an employe what test [illegible] factor, whether he be an [illegible] in your business or [illegible] he be merely the office boy?

Dr. W. C. McGauley

Isn't it logical then, isn't it only fair and proper, isn't it only just and right that in selecting from the field of candidates the next [illegible] of Boston that the chief and [illegible] factor should be the ability of the man to perform and fulfill the duties of mayor not only with honor and integrity but also [illegible] manner?

[illegible] Boston [illegible] taxation. The [illegible] of taxes is indeed a [illegible] and monotonous subject for the public forum, but how tremendously important to each and every one of us

There is not a citizen in Boston be he rich or poor, who is not affected directly by the tax rate in this city, which I begin to believe is increasing yearly.

If something [illegible] action is not [illegible] onrush of [illegible] driving us [illegible] city will be compelled, in order to [illegible] itself to adopt a commission [illegible] government.

FEEBLE-MINDED BOY FREED OF ATTACK CHARGE

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic Coughs and Persistent Colds Lead to Serious Trouble. You Can Stop Them Now With Creomulsion, an Emulsified Creosote That Is Pleasant to Take.

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.

FRENCH TO SEND NEW ENVOY TO SETTLE DEBT

Paris, Oct 30 (A.P.)—It is learned on high authority that Senator Victor Henry Berenger will be appointed soon to succeed Emile Daeschner as French ambassador to the United States.

The decision of the government to change ambassadors in Washington is closely related to the American debt funding negotiations.

Foreign Minister Briand has impressed upon Premier Painleve and others of his colleagues in the Cabinet that another effort should be made to settle the debt.

Senator Berenger is regarded as the best man available to bring this about.

His financial authority in France, his intimate acquaintance with the subject and the ideas he derived from his recent experiences in Washington as a member of the Caillaux debt mission have persuaded the government that if something more is to be done he is the man to do it.

SCHOOL COMMITTE IS OF FIRST IMPORTANCE

That the school committee is a thousand times more important than the election of a mayor, was the contention of William H O'Brien, chief of the telephone and telegraph division of the State Department of Public Utilities and a past president of the Boston Central Labor Union at a meeting in Russell School, Dorchester.

BISHOP YAZBEK TO BE BURIED IN SYRIA

High mass of requiem for Bishop Yazbek, superior of the Syrian Maronite church in America, who died in Boston Wednesday, will be sung tomorrow morning at 10 in St James' Church, Harrison avenue

The celebrant of the mass will be Monsignor Khaira Stephen of Brooklyn, N. Y., and his assistants will be priests from Syrian parishes throughout the State.

Bishop Yazbek founded the church of Our Lady of Cedars on Tyler st., the first Syrian Roman Catholic church in the United States, and served as its pastor until he was transferred to Philadelphia, to assume the pastorate of the church of St. Maron in that city.

Bishop Yazbek was on a visit to Boston making arrangements for the shipment of the body of his nephew, the Rev. Joseph Yazbek, who died six weeks ago, to Syria for burial when he himself was suddenly stricken.

Following the funeral services tomorrow morning for the deceased bishop, his body and that of his nephew will be sent to Syria for interment.

The Rev. Anthony Yazbek, another nephew of the late bishop, has been appointed by Cardinal O'Connell to take over the duties of pastor of the church of Our Lady of Cedars.

Bishop Yazbek was born in St Lebanon, Syria in 1856, and came to this country when a young man He was ordained to the priesthood in 1891 in New York City by Archbishop Corrigan.

Relation With Employees Important, Says Keliher

By JOHN A. KELIHER

I have an abiding faith in the sound judgment of the citizens of Boston. Time and time again the voters have faced situations wherein shrewd and conniving politicians have attempted to confuse and obscure the political issues in order to confound the electorate. It is only when the public are without full information on the questions involved or are denied possession of all the facts that they fail to meet the issue with decision and justice.

John A. Keliher

I have based my appeal to the voters of Boston on a long political career where as the steward of the public I have been privileged to represent them in many offices.

How have I conducted myself?

I maintain that in every public office I have ever held I have been faithful to the interests of the people and that my administration has met with general commendation and been free from criticism.

I have never been called before a [illegible] attorney or been hailed before a finance commission. At all times I have had a deep regard for my oath of office and the obligation to render an honest and efficient administration.

During my service in Congress it was my happy privilege to be active in the cause of securing both an increase in salary and an improvement in working conditions for the postal man carriers.

Their compensation had not been increased for many years although various times efforts had been made to obtain an advance. Through my efforts an increase was granted [illegible] in all of the United States but particularly in the Boston Postal District.

[illegible] and overseers of public welfare and penology I frequently [illegible] Suffolk County was providing for the care of its unfortunates.

The positions which I have transacted without ostentation or publicity and have met with the approval of the public and everywhere it is regarded as a model institution of its character.

Nowhere is training and experience of more value than in the public service. When coupled with an aggressive honesty and fidelity to public trust it results in a successful administration. I appeal to the voters of Boston to consider my entry on my record.

MRS. BARRON CANDIDATE ON 'MOTHER'S PLANK'

Speaking at a rally at the Gillette Safety Razor Company plant today, Mrs. Jennie Loitman Barron, candidate for school committee, today declared the only plank in her platform is a firm adherence to the be[illegible] of the [illegible] to [illegible] copy the ideals and true democracy of the American home.

Mrs. J. L. Barron

My only pledge, said Mrs. Barron, "is that I will faithfully serve all the people of Boston regardless of race or creed. Fathers as well as mothers want the mother's point of view. Elect a mother to the school committee."

Mrs. Barron said that as a mother of two children and a teacher in the evening schools, together with the fact that for eleven years she has been a member of the bar, she is peculiarly fitted for the office she seeks.

[illegible] Jay in agreement on one issue.

All endorsed the fight inaugurated by the City of Boston and carried on by the [illegible] American against the [illegible] boost in [illegible] rates.

Each candidate, in reply to a pointed query put to him by the Evening American, pledged himself to carry on the battle that Boston has already begun on a nationwide scale.

Beacon Hill A Looming Menace, Says Glynn

By THEODORE A. GLYNN.

"As mayor of Boston I intend ever to remain true to the ideals, principles, tradition, history, leadership and progress upon which the name and reputation of the city is based.

Tell the world and your friends that Theodore A. Glynn intends to make Boston the most wholesome and best governed city in the civilized world.

T. A. Glynn.

The powers that have always united in [illegible] upon the citadel of the people in order to wrest from them their rights have again massed their attack. But right and truth will prevail. They always have prevailed. The sword of right is in the hands of the people in this contest and [illegible] is leading the way.

Truth tells the voters of Boston this campaign two very candid things. The first is that all the ugly elements have united to defeat the peoples' candidate, Theodore A. Glynn, so that more of their rights may be easily taken from them. Truth also tells the voters that if they cast their ballots for any other candidate than me these votes are wasted and they fall into the political blunder of turning their city over to that arch plunderer of the people's rights, Charles H. Innes.

I have an abiding faith in the people. I have always had an abiding faith in my fellow citizens and their sagacity. We are waging one of the most desperately fought campaigns ever known to Boston.

Let me urge upon my fellow citizens to remember Beacon Hill. There it stands a shadowy looming menace to popular government for Boston. And just as from over that hill there came the cloudy pall of an $6,000,000 increase in telephone rates to stifle and kill of thrifty ambition, just as from over that hill there floated the menace to ambition, the many curses placed upon us by a Republican made Public Utilities Commission; just as from that same hill there have come various other iniquities from which the people of Boston have suffered, so we are threatened again and with more dire consequences if we listen to the siren voices of the enemies of popular government.

A LETTER OF THANKS

Dear Good People of Boston!

It is impossible to write or thank personally every one and I am taking this way to whole-heartedly express my appreciation to all who have helped to make it possible for me to realize the ambition of my life in bringing to Boston my production of "The Miracle." This helps pay a long standing debt which I owe to my adopted home town.

My heartfelt thanks go out to Governor Fuller who responded so sympathetically, promptly and generously when his interest, on behalf of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, was solicited. I cannot too many times thank Mayor Curley for the ready hand of welcome he stretched out to me, in behalf of the City of Boston, when I told him I was going to bring "The Miracle" here without a guarantee fund such as I require in other cities.

To the officials of the Police Department, Building Department and the Fire Department of this city I am deeply indebted for their hearty co-operation.

The merchants of Boston as represented by the Retail Board of Trade of the Chamber of Commerce have been of wonderful help in many far-reaching directions.

My personal thanks are expressed to Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert for permitting use of their beautiful Boston Opera House for staging the production of "The Miracle."

To the Press of Boston is due my great appreciation for their whole-souled and unselfish support in bringing to a successful artistic climax the dream of my life.

My general manager, William Oviatt, herewith has my thanks expressed publicly for his undying devotion and constant faithfulness day and night in making it possible for me to keep faith with the Boston public when I announced weeks ago the opening of "The Miracle" in Boston for Wednesday night, October 28th.

And I want to publicly acknowledge also the wonderful help of that great unseen army of co-workers, my stage hands, carpenters, electricians, musicians—yes, my entire great company, individually, in whatever capacity, all of whom have worked to one great end, the best presentation of "The Miracle" ever given on any stage in the world.

I also wish to acknowledge with deep appreciation the hundreds of congratulatory letters and telegrams which are pouring in from all sides.

The opening presentation of "The Miracle" and the wonderful reception that you good people of Boston and New England extended gave me a night that I will never forget. It made it worth while to go through the hardships and suffering that have been my lot.

In the past twenty-five years I have attended important premieres in every capital of the world and I have never seen anything to compare with Boston's glorious welcome given to "The Miracle"—and

Yours Sincerely,

MORRIS GEST

Producer of "The Miracle."

PLAN AIR LINE TO FLORIDA

Possibility of an air line from Boston to Florida for mail, freight and passenger traffic is foreseen in a request from the National Aeronautic Association to the Boston Chamber of Commerce for support for such a project.

Such a proposed air route would include stops at more than thirty cities between the two points, and the establishment of a quick freight and passenger service to the playground of the South.

The National Aeronautic Association asks that an effort be made to interest capitalists in the proposal.

NAB FUGITIVE FROM ASYLUM

Providence, Oct. 30 (A P)—Frank Weedan who escaped from the State Hospital for Mental Diseases on June 11 last where he had been transferred from prison where he was serving a sentence of eighteen years for assault with a dangerous weapon upon a young woman, his cousin, was apprehended at East Greenwich today.

Weeden according to the story he told the authorities, after his escape, worked for a farmer in Rehoboth for a week, then went to Scranton, Pa., and then to Illinois where he worked for wheat and corn growers. A few days ago he decided to come East on Business in reference to his mother's property in East Greenwich.

Cat's Away, Mouse 'Does His Stuff' In Arkansas

Little Rock, Ark., Oct. 30 (A P)—His "no pardon" record in fragments, Governor Tom J. Terral today was rushing back to the State line in hope of preventing Acting Governor S. B. McCall from adding to the list of nine pardons already issued.

In addition to granting clemency to nine including three men convicted of misuse of State funds, Terral approved the bond of Frank Horsfall avowed enemy of Governor Terral as disbursing agent of the Fourth District Agricultural College and appointed Dr. L. M. Hill, whose name had been held up several months by Terral, to the board of chiropractic examiners.

WOUNDED THUG IDENTIFIED AS CHAPMAN'S PAL

Tale of Dispensary Man Sets Buffalo Police on Trail of Anderson

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 30 (I.N.S.)—Report that George "Dutch" Anderson, notorious pal of Gerald Chapman, arch criminal, was still in Buffalo inspired police today to redouble their efforts in the hunt for Anderson, Harry Harris and the gang of thugs who are suspected of murdering two employes of the Marine Trust Company, wounding a third and stealing $93,000 in currency in the most sensational holdup in the history of Buffalo.

Harold Brown, night attendant at Dr. Pierce's Dispensary, is certain Anderson is the man who walked into the dispensary at 4 o'clock this morning and asked for aid and treatment for a bullet wound over his right eye.

SEEN BY POLICEMAN.

Brown kept his patient there for more than an hour seeking to send word to police. He said the man drove off in an automobile with a Michigan number.

Patrolman Fred J. McMullen corroborated Brown's story. The officer saw a man answering Anderson's description driving north in Main street so fast he could not get the license number. Mrs. Homberger of No. 23 Danforth street notified police that two men who, she thought, were members of the bandit gang sought lodging at her house late yesterday. One of the men she said, had his right arm bandaged.

TWO BIG REWARDS.

For the capture of the band there is a reward of $10,000 offered by the Marine Trust Company and the Buffalo Clearing House Association has posted a reward of $10 [illegible] for the capture, dead or alive, of any thug who figures in the future in a bank holdup.

Death claimed the second victim in the dramatic holdup and robbery when Louis M. Yarrington, fifty, bank messenger, died from the effects of bullet wounds in both lungs.

THIEF, IN RACE, ELUDES COPS

Lowell, Oct. 30.—Eluding the police after a wild midnight chase a daring thief abandoned an expensive brougham he had stolen from in front of Memorial Auditorium and the car was found parked in East Merrimack street its number plates bent so they couldn't be recognized.

Coming out of the auditorium the owner of the machine James I. Kelley, No. 20 Dover street saw the man driving his car away. He shouted but the thief merely "stepped on it." Kelley leaped for the running board, missed his footing and fell in the street while the car sped down East Merrimack street.

Hearing Kelley's shouts, Patrolman James F. Brosnan commandeered another auto and chased the thief. The car wasn't fast enough so in High street Brosnan commandeered another. He went to Reading without catching sight of the stolen auto.

Meanwhile police headquarters had been notified and Lieutenant Michael H. Winn, Sergeant Joseph H. Johnson and Motorcycle Officers Thomas Nelson, Walter Kivlan and Daniel M. Lynch went in search of the machine. Eventually they found the car in East Merrimack street.

SUICIDE TREASURER OF CHARLTON $28,000 SHORT

Worcester, Oct. 30 (A P)—Harris M. Dodge, Charlton town treasurer who shot and killed himself in his home September 22, after first burning all town financial records in his possession, was more than $28,000 short in his accounts, according to the findings of State auditors completed Monday and made public today.

The announcement comes as the climax of a series of dramatic incidents beginning with the sudden appearance of the State auditors and the burning of the records.

PARIS DIVORCES CUT 2 MORE AMERICAN KNOTS

Paris, Oct. 30 (I N S)—America again today figured prominently in the Paris divorce courts. Carroll Marshall Irvin was granted a divorce from his wife, the former Louise Hendricks. They were married in Baltimore, April 25, 1900. A divorce was granted to Mrs. Paul Vincent Shields, who was formerly Miss Marjorie McColl. The Shields were married in Brooklyn, November 2, 1910. Mrs. Shields was granted the custody of their daughter, Barbara, 12.

COP SAVES 11 FELLED BY SOFT COAL FUMES

New York, Oct. 30 (I N S)—Soft coal fumes seeping from the furnace to the upper floors of an apartment house in Brooklyn almost proved fatal to eleven persons today. A patrolman hearing faint calls for help broke down the door and dragged several unconscious persons to the street. Mrs. Sallie Lange awakened by the moans of her four year-old son, was the first to collapse.

COLLEGES FACE CRISIS, PREXYS ARE WARNED

Prof. Richardson, Dartmouth, Fears Misdirected Enthusiasm for Higher Education

[illegible] Ct., Oct. 30 (A P)—The twenty-seventh annual conference of the American Association of [illegible] at its first session at [illegible] was addressed [illegible] B. Richardson of Dartmouth College. More than sixty delegates from leading institutions of the country [illegible] and [illegible] presidents are attending.

Professor Richardson in his speech said that "a crisis confronts the American college, the external aspects of which are evident to all, but whose true significance is not always understood even by those who have the institution in charge.

"The college is suffering from the results of its own success," he said. "Within the [illegible] years and especially [illegible] American social [illegible] war the so-called [illegible] with [illegible] perplex him [illegible] to analyze the elements of the [illegible] the ultimate [illegible] thronged [illegible] bers and [illegible] in sight.

"The [illegible] haps [illegible] thought as to what [illegible] who they want it [illegible] also a expenditure [illegible] not only to the embryo professional man and scholar, but to every youth may manifest however [illegible] the desire [illegible] the privilege of carrying his educational development as far as he may choose."

Herb Treat Shows 'Em How

U. PRIMED FOR HARD GAME

"On to Springfield" is the cry heard at Boston University today as students and football team are going thro[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] "[illegible]" method.

The team itself is all [illegible] a strenuous game. Captain Bill Murphy's cohorts are ready to do their all after a two-week lay off. Halliday, Sims and O'Brien, new backfield finds, will be on hand to supplement the work of Whelton, Carlson, Henry and Macdonald. MELLO PROVES CLASS BY WHIPPING JONES

LOCAL BOY OF TITLE CALIBRE

Welter Contender Will Take on Shevlin or Malone Next

By JACK CONWAY.

Al Mello, sensational Lowell welterweight, has "arrived." He has blazed his name on the fistic trail that leads to the championship castle of Mickey Walker, welterweight king.

Mello, fighting his first major league battle after knocking out six straight opponents in minor bouts, stood up like a champion.

He performed a feat which baffled Dave Shade, Eddie Shevlin and other great welterweights. He completely outboxed and outfought Jones.

Seven rounds went to Mello, two to Jones, the other was even

The second and ninth were Jones' rounds, the final stanza was a fifty-fifty affair

In the other rounds, Mello's fiery attack and fierce, crushing punches wrecked the fighting spirit of Jones, battered his face until it resembled a red pulp and bruised his body

Up in Lowell today they are telling the world from the main street and the back porches that Al Mello is going to be the next welterweight champion of the world.

There is talk today of a Mello-Shevlin bout for the New England welterweight championship. If Shevlin refuses to risk a meeting with the colorful Mello, the latter will probably be pitted against Jock Malone

It was announced Mello weighed 150 pounds, Jones 148½ pounds. Johnny Brassill was referee.

Sandy Seifert of Pittsburgh stopped Jimmy Madden of Roxbury in seven rounds in the semi-final

The Roxbury heavyweight had the margin in the first two rounds. Seifert's heavy blows then got in their effect and Madden eventually dropped to the canvas.

In the opening four-round bout Eddie Zine of the South End defeated Frankie Ryan of Roxbury.

Nick Madonna of Lexington won over Johnny Scully of South Boston in a six session affair.

Carpentier Signs t oFight Delaney

Paris, Oct. 30. (A.P.)—Georges Carpentier, former light heavyweight champion of the world, today signed articles to meet Jimmy Delaney, St. Paul light heavyweight, in a ten round bout in California between January 15 anr January 31, 1926

Jack Doyle, Los Angeles promoter, announced recently that he had mailed articles to Carpentier offering hom 30 per cent of the gate receipts and $5,000 for expenses for a ten-round bout with Delaney in Los Angeles. Carpentier has said that if he wins this bout he will seek a meeting with Paul Berlenbach, present light heavyweight titleholder, in New York

FINNEGAN TO MEET KAPLAN IF HE WINS

By JACK CONWAY

Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan of Dorchester faces a fight for the world's featherweight championship against Kid Kaplan of Meriden, Ct.

Although Babe Herman of California, who clashes with Finnegan here next Wednesday night is carded to meet the champion in the first show at the New Madison Square Gardens in New York, Matchmaker Jess McMahon of the Garden has notified Herman that unless he beats Finnegan, he will lose the fight and the Boston featherweight will take his place

This important announcement was broadcasted from New York when McMahon clinched the title fight and it has added a new angle to the important fight between Herman and Finnegan at Mechanics Building next Wednesday.

Unheard of less than a year ago. Finnegan today is considered the most dangerous punching featherweight in the country. He is feared in all sides and featherweights use every known subterfuge to elude a match with him.

Twice Hub fans have been given a taste of the tricks used in the ring game to duck matches.

Twise Babe Herman has tried to back out of the match with Finnegan but the New York boxing commission at last used its power and informed the California boy that unless he meets Finnegan he will be barred in New York and will be prevented from reaping the golden harvest of a championship match

Treat and Conway in the Sport Special

HERB TREAT'S full predictions on the results of the big college football games of the week-end will appear in tomorrow's four-page Saturday Sport Special. Hundred Per cent. Treat is what they call him all through New England, he is calling the turn so accurately. Treat not only has played and studied football, but has seen in action the teams he writes about.

Jack Conway will have another of his interesting boxing stories. "AL" will tell some more about "Dear Old Bogus." There will be a page of action photographs and all the news of all the sports. No Saturday is complete for the fans without a Sport Special.

HEAVIES CLASH IN BIG ELKS RING SHOW

BY RINGSIDE

Thirty-five bouts will be staged at another amateur boxing carnival under the direction of the Boston Lodge of Elks at the Boston Arena tonight. There will be seven classes in all, which means there will be plenty of competition

Chairman George Freeman of the Elks' Athletic Committee, is featuring the heavyweight division. He has secured the entries of the best of the Connecticut heavies, who will be called upon to test their ability against the class of the New England big fellows.

The best of the local boys are also entered in the other six classes Three of the divisions will be novices which will give the inexperienced youngsters an opportunity to do their stuff

The proceeds of tonight's show will go to swell the charity fund of the Elks. Exalted Ruler Daniel Kane says the usual popular prices of 50 cents, 75 cents and $1 will prevail.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER R. HORTON

THE LENGTH OF THE BACK SWING DETERMINES THE FORCE OF THE BLOW.

Often in playing to the putting green the shot may call for a decision as to playing a full stroke with one club as against a half stroke with a longer iron. In this case the longer iron may be used, but the shorter swing with it is not a spared shot at all. You swing into the ball with all the snap you would use otherwise, the only difference being that the back swing is shorter. Harry Vardon once advanced the theory that the forward swing was always the same, regardless of the distance to be taken, and that only the back swing changed—the length of the back swing determining the force of the blow against the ball. I do not agree with this, for it appears to me that the clubhead can be speeded up or held back more or less in the forward swing regardless of the length of the back swing. Also that this control of the clubhead is accomplished without pressing on the one hand or sparing the shot on the other. There is a happy medium that the player finds for himself

Barry and Vitale in Bout at Salem

There should be plenty of fire works when Jimmy Meda presents a bang-up all star card at the Salem A. A. tonight. There will be three eight-round bouts and two sixes

The feature eight will bring together Leo Barry of Peabody and Jerry Vitale of Beverly. In another eight rounder, Buddy Jenkins of Lynn will take on Al Lewis of Boston, while in the third eight Young Briscoe of Manchester will oppose Charley Costello of Boston.

There will be two sixes, Teddy Reynolds of Salem meeting Tommy Lee of Salem and Bobby O'Brien of Chelsea battling Joe Cappy of this city

There are but a few undefeated teams in scholastic circles. Everett ...dig..., a team that does not play what may be called a hand-picked schedule, is one of the teams that has yet to take the count. But it's a sad story, mates. Medford looks a bit too powerful this week end.

Coach Sampson has his athletes on the edge for the classic and experts are picking the Medfordites to win by a wide margin. It was announced that Ingraham, Kirk, Herb and Edgerly would start in the back field for Medford, with Michaelson, Manfre, Wells and Nutter alternating at the assignments behind the forward wall.

It's going to be sort of a Notre Dame novelty, two sets of teams with the second team almost as good as the first. That's how powerful Medford is, the secondary material refuses to be denied. A scrimmage session between Team A and B would give the average fan more thrills than an ordinary contest, the players are so evenly matched.

But George Brickley's aggregation is not a bit bashful; he, too, has his warriors in perfect shape. Mr. Brickley has almost worn out his good right hand trying to show his charges how to stop Edgerly, Herb and Kirk, often called "three bad eggs."

Old Tech Field will be the scene of an important league battle, with Brookline and Rindge Tech furnishing the excitement.

Bill Kelliher's gridsters caught Medford way off form last week and they came very near beating them, but after they outplayed their rivals, a bad break played a mean trick on the Rindge outfit with the ball in the shadow of the Medford goal post.

Capt. Tommy Galligan's Newton High delegation will swoop into Somerville where they will oppose Charlie Dickerman's ... touted pupils at Dilboy Field.

VIRGINIANS ARRIVE IN HUB

By BILL GRIMES.

Arriving in Boston yesterday noon, Coach Tasker re-entrained his 33 husky William and Mary foot ball players to Franklin, where the squad worked out in the afternoon on the Dean Academy field. As the boys were stiff and tired after their long ride from Williamsburg, Va., they were sent through only a light drill. They spent some time, perfecting their running plays and then occupied the remainder of the afternoon kicking and passing.

Although William and Mary have been through a hard season, they are in fine condition for the game with Harvard in the Stadium tomorrow afternoon. The team has met with only two setbacks this season. They were defeated in one of the early games by the Navy 25 to 0 and later were smoothered under by Syracuse 33 to 0. While playing against teams of their own class, W. and M. have made a very creditable showing. They are not predicting a win over Harvard but they feel confident that they will give the Crimson a good battle.

Art Matsu, the Scot-Jap quarterback, is the star attraction of the Virginia eleven. Matsu prepared for William and Mary at East High in Cleveland, O., and his playing has featured practically every game the Williamsburg team has played in the past three years.

Matsu is a real triple threat. Unlike his Nippon brothers, Matsu is a rangy chap, being about five feet eight, but he weighs less than 150. He is a very shifty runner, a fine kicker, especially fast getting off his punts and is an accurate passer.

Bob Anderson, who was a member of the High School of Commerce when Skip Sherlock was the mentor of the Back Bay school, is playing centre for William and Mary. Bob won his varsity letters last season, which was his freshman year at the Virginia college. He has been playing great football this Fall and is fast showing himself to be one of the best linemen that ever wore the green, gold and silver.

The William and Mary team is quartered at the Woodcock Inn at Wrentham and Coach Tasker will hold two work-out sessions today. The cool weather of this section has put new life in the Virginia outfit.

FLATLEY CALLS 'EM

Foo.ball Strikes.
Cutie Spears.
A $250,000 Parlay.
Player-Writers.

By NICK FLATLEY

HARVARD isn't the only spot where the condition of football players is causing more or less commotion. Several members of the squad at Oglethorpe, where Jim Robertson is coaching have retired because they were worked too hard. Cutie Spears' heroes, out in Minnesota, went on strike because the boss was trying to cram too much vigorous, physical labor into the daily program. It is sort of pleasing to find out that the objection to strenuous exercising isn't confined to the so-called effete East. It is very surprising, that report from Minnesota. That's where the men are men, and the individual a perfect physical example of what the great outdoors will do. That's what the movies, and Harold Bell Wright would have us believe. Large Mister Spears might have a few interesting things to say about the opposite just now.

Nick Flatley

CUTIE was a whale for work when he was an athlete, and naturally is a driver as a coach. He knows that constant practice makes a football player. He was one of those roly poly individuals that appear once in a while, armored with solid muscle rather than fat. He was a great lineman with Dartmouth. He enjoyed having husky backs bounce off his ears. It was his idea of a perfect Fall afternoon.

A. K. MACOMBER, American sportsman, wins $250,000 on a two-horse parlay on the English tracks. He bet $500 on two of his own horses and was given odds of 500 to 1. That will encourage parlay players the world over. They will not stop to figure that Macomber, a millionaire, owns some of the world's best horses. He knew that Masked Marvel and Forseti, his winners, were in grand shape. Barring bad racing luck, he had a good chance to win both races. Yet he only wagered $500, less to him than a dime to the poor chaps who risk their dollars on horses and races they know nothing about.

THE gentle art of letters will receive a jolt that may ruin it if the recommendations of Chicago baseball writers are carried out. The typewriter boys out there have asked the large league presidents, Heydler and Johnson, to ban player writing during world series, and such things. That will remove the most enjoyable literature from the Fall carnival. The fan who has read the neatly worded paragraph about inferiority complexes and psychological effects, will no longer be able to marvel at the mental agility of the author who roars at an umpire "Yer blind bum, that ain't no strike," thereby proving his ability to suit his English to any occasion.

PLAYING SECRETS OF Famous Football Stars

No. 12—Told by ELMER OLIPHANT, Halfback—West Point

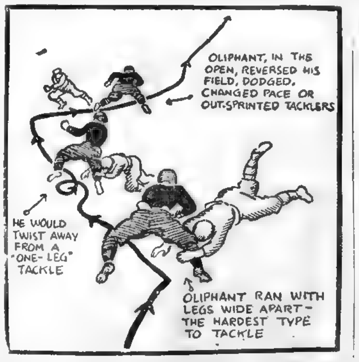
To ED. THORP, Famous Player, Coach and Referee

OLIPHANT is generally placed first in the list of West Point gridiron heroes. Almost single-handed, he defeated the Army's ancient rivals from Annapolis every year he was at the Military Academy.



OLIPHANT, IN THE OPEN, REVERSED HIS FIELD, DODGED, CHANGED PACE OR OUT-SPRINTED TACKLERS
HE WOULD TWIST AWAY FROM A "ONE-LEG" TACKLE
OLIPHANT RAN WITH LEGS WIDE APART—THE HARDEST TYPE TO TACKLE

Oliphant was short and stocky. He had almost unusual style of running, spreading his legs and revolving his body so that opponents could not make a sure tackle. While he represented the Cadets elevens Oliphant was never downed by both legs in a front tackle.

Here's how the former West Point star describes his playing style, which has few equals in the annals of football.

"Like Ty Cobb, was always thinking ahead. Never worried about the man nearest me about to make the tackle. I had already figured how I would get past him. Before reaching the first man would be planning how to elude the second man and so on down the field.

"After breaking through the line would frequently change pace, cut in or reverse the field. Spreading my legs and revolving body was a big help as opponents invariably would only grab one leg and many times it would be possible to slip from the grip. Once in the open would mix up everything I had to confuse the opponents."

BELLEFONTE IS OPPONENT OF DEAN TODAY

Bellefonte Academy's plucky football team, will clash with Dean Academy today at Tufts Oval. With several former Greater Boston gridsters in the Dean lineup Coach Sullivan's brigade should halt the winning streak of their opponents.

Walter Kelson, formerly of Som...e High, is classed as one of the greatest ends in prep school ranks. Sweeney, Carmichael and Martin have been coming along in great fashion and the forward wall will be hard to penetrate.

In the backfield Wright, Dunphy, Colbert and Mitchell are very good looking prospects on whom Coach Sullivan is pinning his hopes on.

CASEY DECIDES ON TUFTS LINEUP

"With the exception of two positions, the same lineup which started against the Connecticut Aggies, will represent Tufts against New Hampshire State at Durham, tomorrow, according to Coach Eddie Casey. Casey thinks that at least he has found his strongest combination. Clabault will replace Lehan in the backfield, making the third change which has been made in the backfield within the last two weeks. Finkelstein will take his old place at right guard, playing next to Hanson, the big sophomore tackle who has replaced Moe Pett.

McKENNEY OUT UNTIL GAME WITH H. C.

BY BILL CONSODINE

Boston College may be minus the services of Joe McKenney until the Holy Cross game.

The absence of the Brighton "Flash" from the regular starting line-up of the Boston College eleven has caused considerable comment in football circles in the Hub, many folks thinking that Joe had slipped and for that reason was on the bench.

The truth has leaked out at the Heights and it gives Joe a clean slate in regard to his football ability but will probably keep him out of the remainder of the preliminary games, this fall.

Joe was slightly hurt in a scrimmage during the early weeks of the season when one of the second team made a "neat" tackle around his ankle and held on while Joe twisted and turned in an effort to get away. When the play was over, Joe had a bad ankle.

Now Major Cavanaugh knows what is the matter and he will probably force McKenney to take a much needed rest. McKenney's place has been taken by Billy Crean and Dinny McNamara.

Coach Cavanaugh will probably make two changes for Saturday's game at the Wigwam. The changes will affect the center of the Eagle line.

Mose Harris is due to start at left guard where Cavanaugh has been playing Don Sheehan and Mike Durand.

Steve Kobelenskie after four years of trying, has finally crashed the final obstacle and will play center on Saturday. Steve is one of the best pivot men at the Heights but his lack of weight has made him a negligible contender for honors. He only tips the beam at 140 pounds.

HARVARD LOOKS FOR TROUBLE FROM W. & M.

By TED LYNCH

Harvard is not taking the coming of the William and Mary Indians too lightly. The Crimson coaching staff will keep all regulars in Cambridge on Saturday. Dolph Cheek and Madison Sayles will not scout Big Three opponents.

The mentors point out that the Virginians have held the powerful Naval Academy eleven to a 25 to 0 score, and that Harvard isn't likely to roll up a big score tomorrow.

Preparations for the game are of a busy kind across the Charles. Scrimmages took place the first three days this week and the players have been given special drill in the defense of the forward pass which is the main offense expected of the Virginians.

Bordie Tripp is the latest member of the varsity eleven. He will replace Charley Bradford whom the coaches have decided to hold in reserve. Tripp played as a freshman guard on last years eleven and weighs 187 pounds, which is three pounds heavier than Bradford.

Coach Bob Fisher diminished his squad by one man when he sent Jack Malick, Franklin High star, to Jimmy Knox seconds. Malick was not pleased over the demotion and declared that he is through with football for this Fall at least.

WACHTER TO COACH GREEN 5

SIGNS FOR TERM OF 3 YEARS

Famous Mentor Expected to Put Dartmouth Back on Basketball Map

By BILL GRIMES.

Bill Grimes.

In signing Lou Wachter to a three-years' contract, Dartmouth took the first progressive step they have made in basketball in a decade. The basketball teams at Hanover have met with such poor success that annually there comes a protest from the alumni to abolish the sport.

Lou Wachter is a pioneer of basketball. Some twenty years ago, when basketball was raging in these parts, Lou Wachter and his brother Ed, who is the basketball coach at Harvard, came to Boston with the Gloversville, N. Y., team and showed the local basket shooters what was what in basketball.

Lou Wachter took over the coaching of the Dartmouth basketball team a year ago. He was offered a long term contract at the time, but refused it. George Zahn, who was Wachter's predecessor at Hanover, had been accused by some of the players of showing favoritism in the selection of the team, and there was a black cloud hanging over the basketball situation at the time Wachter was tendered a contract.

A year ago last Spring charges were preferred against George Zahn, by Eddie Dooley, Mike Watkins, Eddie Edwards and George Tully. It is doubtful if such a condition ever developed in any other large college. Then to make matters worse, the Dartmouth Athletic Council called George Zahn to Hanover to answer the charges. After the trial, George Zahn was completely exonerated while Dooley, Tully and Edwards lost their class insignias and Mike Watkins was relieved of his varsity football "D."

Regardless of the fact that George Zahn had completely disproved every charge and came out with a clean slate, he was told by the council that they "deemed it better if he did not return to Hanover the next season."

It looked as though Lou Wachter was to be the goat when he took up the basket ball coaching duties at Dartmouth. Due to the decision of the council in favor of Zahn, Edwards and Tully did not report for basket ball and Dooley left college after he met with his accident. With a couple of veterans and three inexperienced sophomores, Wachter made a fine showing in league games. They went through without a defeat until the final trip when the team blew and one of the finest opportunities Dartmouth ever had of winning the Intercollegiate basket ball championship was lost.

Dartmouth should make even a better showing this Winter. The players are now somewhat familiar with Wachter's style of play and what is more important every one appreciates that Lou knows the game from every angle.

LEONARD LISTENS TO OVERTURES FROM RICKARD

New York, Oct. 30.—Reports of a possible re-entry into the ring by Benny Leonard, former lightweight champion, were revived today. It was said that Leonard had been listening to proposals by Tex Rickard for a big bout in the New Garden.

Stars of Providence

SILENT TRIBUTE PAID PERCY HAUGHTON

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.)—Football warriors of Columbia and Cornell, resting today for their annual conflict tomorrow at the Polo Grounds, paid silent tribute to the memory of Percy D. Haughton, who died on the eve of the 1924 meeting of the two elevens.

That the great coach, who laid the foundation of the 1925 team, remains in the spirit of his influence to spur on his Columbia players, finds expression in the following poem by Charles A. Wagner, end on the junior varsity team:

If Haughton died,
  Then Shakespeare died,
And art is short
  And history lied.

If Haughton died,
  Then through the land
Close down the gates,
  Tear down the stand!

If Haughton died,
  Plow up the field
And plant tall corn
  For Autumn yield.

He has not died;
  His plays they call,
The kick is high—
  "Prince of the ball."

He has not died;
  He still stands tall
Where others crouch
  When signals call.

He has not died—
  His arm was long.
He built a tower
  Of endless song.

Treat's detailed analysis of the outcome of tomorrow's games will appear in the Saturday Sport Special. He will cover the Cornell-Columbia game for the Boston Sunday Advertiser. Nick Flatley will cover the Dartmouth-Brown game. Saturday's late editions of the Boston Evening American will carry play-by-play accounts of 5 big games.

BRITISH BOXERS SUSPENDED BY N. Y. SOLONS

New York, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—William Ames of Clifton, Mass., and a string of British boxers he manages, including We Willie Woods, Tommy Milligan and Frank Moody, all were suspended indefinitely by the New York State Athletic Commission.

The ban on Ames and his boxers was applied by the commission after similar action had been taken by the Massachusetts boxing commission because of the failure of Moody to go through with an agreement to fight Lew Chester here.

Unless the suspension is lifted, it will upset the plans for another American invasion by Milligan, European welterweight and middleweight champion, who yesterday was signed by Tex Rickard for three fights in this country early next year, the last to be with Mickey Walker, world's welterweight titleholder.

ARNOLD STATZ LEADS 'PRO' BASEBALL STARS AT GOLF

Los Angeles, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—Arnold Statz, former Chicago Cub and more recently Los Angeles outfielder, won the professional baseball players' second annual golf tournament here yesterday by defeating Clyde Barfoot, leading Coast League pitcher last season, two up.

SPEED CHARIOTS ALL TUNED FOR RACE

Rockingham, Oct. 30.—Tuned to the highest possible point of mechanical perfection, the seventeen roaring, snorting racing machines and the intrepid drivers, scheduled to fight out the 250-mile championship race on the Rockingham Motor Speedway tomorrow, await only the starting signal.

To the casual reader this may seem a commonplace thing, but to the racing man it means a piece of marvelous good fortune, superinduced by careful and cautious handling and [illegible]. As much attention is given to the shipment of one of the [illegible] machines, the poorest of which [illegible] cost its owner upwards of $12,500, as is given to the packing of the finest bric-a-brac. Some idea of the stupendous task involved in shipping the seventeen cars and the necessary equipment, such as mechanicians' tools, gasoline, tires, parts, etc., may be had when it is realized that the cost of transportation to Laurel, Md., for the race of last Monday, totaled more than $8,000.

The shipment of these same automobiles from California to Salem, N. H., meant an expenditure of more than $15,000. Thus it can readily be seen that automobile racing is an expensive as well as dangerous game and can only be played by men with nerve to gamble not alone with their life, but with their money as well.

BILL KLINE MAY PLAY FOR YALE

Yale is elated over the possibility of Bill Kline's being able to play against the Cadets Saturday. His knee is mending [illegible] but may not be quite well [illegible] to let him get in. There is no chance [illegible] action before next week. Tad Jones [illegible] before the game [illegible].

Army has completed its active preparations for the Yale game and is [illegible] for Saturday with a healthy squad. [illegible] probably start at left [illegible] place of Sereno. The lineup [illegible] before the first whistle [illegible] considered likely.

Princeton for the first time this season has definitely a varsity team. The terminology, Team A and Team B has been discarded and there is now a first eleven and the seconds. The final selections of Roper for the first backfield include Charley Weekes, whose consistent starring has won him the berth. Weekes, Caulkins, Slagle and Bridges are the others.

Dartmouth will be without her captain as far as is now known. Nate Parker's leg injury, while it is rapidly improving, is unlikely to allow him to participate in Saturday's game. Johnny Phillips, the fighting sophomore, will start in his place. The Green squad which spent last night in Boston arrives in Providence today. With the exception of Parker, the health of the men is excellent.

Williams is resting preparatory to the Union game with the varsity lineup uncertain because of recent injuries. Captain Howe, Popham, Strahan and Boynton will start in the backfield. The ends are still a mystery.

Conn. Aggies, contrary to predictions, will start with Captain Brink at his regular position. His presence will give the Aggies their full strength against Manhattan Saturday. All the other men are in good shape.

Columbia's squad went through the longest session of the year as the final hard workout before clashing with Cornell. The drill lasted three and a half hours.

Lewis Fails to Throw McGuire

Ed "Strangler" Lewis failed to toss Ned McGuire, the Irish giant, in the one hour wrestling match at the Grand Opera House. He had agreed to throw McGuire twice in an hour.

In the semi-final match, Leon Labriola threw Harold Stevens of Oklahoma in two falls.

STRONG PRELIM CARD FOR CASINO SHOW

The Casino A. C. of Lynn has arranged an unusually strong preliminary bill to usher in the Buddy Clark-Tod Smith battle Monday night. Harry Goldstein of Boston and Frankie Hebert of Lowell will meet in the eight-round semi-final.

Johnny Scully of South Boston and Jack Doyle of Cambridge are paired in a six-round bout, and Frankie Ryan of Roxbury and Joe Dwyer of South Boston meet in the opening six-rounder.

TALKING UP TUNNEY-DELANEY BOUT DEC. 12

San Francisco, Oct. 30.—Gene Tunney, American light-weight champion, will fight in San Francisco on Saturday, December 12, if negotiations under way today work out. Matchmaker Harry Morrison of the new Mission Athletic Club is trying to match Tunney for a 12 round no-decision affair, with Jimmy Delaney, light-heavyweight of St. Paul.

COLONELS AND SEALS PLAY FINAL GAME

San Franisco, Oct. 30 (A.P.).—The Louisville Colonels, champions of the American Association, and the San Francisco Seals, champions of the Pacific Coast League, clash today in the final contest of a nine-game series in which each team holds four victories.

Schoolboy Sports

Coach Bob Keefe's Revere High eleven will face the Beverly High outfit at the Beverly High Stadium tomorrow. With Captain Morrelli, Halsband, Turco, Silverman and Slade in the pink of condition. The Beach City invaders ought to win.

The light but fighting Melrose High outfit will oppose Winchester this week-end at the Melrose High Athletic Field. Melrose with a galaxy of good looking prospects on the squad may prove a hard nut to crack.

In a contest that will be hotly contested Winthrop and Lynn English will trot in the football limelight at the Francis Barry playgrounds, Lynn, tomorrow. Winthrop under the direction of Coach Poole is setting a dizzy pace and a victory would mean a whole lot.

Malden football scouts, who have followed the Manchester High team this season, report that Malden should beat their Granite State rivals without much trouble. Morris Spector, and his teammate Mangan will have a big day.

What Do You Like Best in Radio?

Fifty dollar PRIZE CONTEST FOR RADIO LETTERS ABOUT WHAT YOU LIKE BEST OVER YOUR RADIO.

THE BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN WANTS TO KNOW WHAT PHASE OF BROADCASTING IS MOST POPULAR.

WE ARE OFFERING FOUR PRIZES, OF $20, $15, $10 and $5 each for the four best letters telling us what the writers like best in the line of broadcasting. These letters are to be judged for first, second, third and fourth place by the Radio Editor of the Boston Evening American.

Already letters are pouring in. So far the majority vote seems to be for popular songs. But jazz is holding its own—and there is a strong sentiment for classical music.

Let us hear from YOU!

Don't write a long letter, and don't mention individuals or stations. Just tell us in a few words—not over a hundred—what KIND of entertainment you like best over the radio.

Get busy, fans, turn off your tubes, take up your pen, and try for your share of the prize money—$20, $15, $10 and $5.

Which do you like best—dance music, concert music, household program lectures, news flashes, organ recitals, popular songs, band concerts or after-dinner speeches?

TODAY OVER WNAC

The Minerva Trio, an instrumental group which is popular in Boston, will appear at Station WNAC at 9:30 o'clock tonight for a short concert. The program to be played by this talented trio is varied, containing, as it does, music which ranges from "Samson and Delilah" to waltzes from "The Student Prince."

The Minerva Trio includes C. Muriel French, violinist; Alberta Kelley, violoncello, and Louise Doucot, pianist.

Tomorrow at 1.45 Station WNAC will broadcast direct from the Harvard Stadium the football game between Harvard and William and Mary. This game is attracting much interest locally. Charl. Donelan will be at the microphone.

Uncle Bill Is Back

"Uncle Bill of Sweet Meadows," the inimitable radio character who has delighted countless thousands of WBZ listeners with his humorous and quaint stories in rural dialect and his true Yankee philosophy, will answer the call of the microphone tonight after an absence of more than five months from the air.

"Uncle Bill" is Rupert B. Ripley, and the repeated requests of listeners in all parts of the country within range of this station's far-reaching signals have induced him to go on the air at 7.45 o'clock tonight. In his original style Uncle Bill will relate to his "neighbors" his vacation experiences in the little Vermont hamlet made famous through his weekly broadcasts over WBZ. Once again he will tell of the unusual characters who reside in the little town of his imagination and his fifteen minutes' broadcast will hold the interest of his many friends among WBZ's large audience.

RADIO DEVICE TO HALT TRAINS

Detroit, Oct. 30.—Successful demonstration of a radio-controlled device which checks speeding locomotive automatically when in a danger zone has been announced here by officials of the Pere Marquette Railroad. Tests made on a ten-mile stretch of tracks, with Thomas E. Clark, inventor of the device, in control, were said to have been highly satisfactory.

Through a series of signal lights installed in engine cabs it was demonstrated that the engineer can be forewarned of impending disaster in ample time to halt the train before the point is reached.

In explaining his invention, which railroad officials state will result in the saving of lives through the prevention of accidents, Mr. Clark said:

"The success of continuous control depends on the propagation of electro-magnetic waves flowing in the track rails, these waves being picked up by loop collector coils under the pilot. The waves are humped into the rails by a roadside unit. They are transmitted at a wave length of 23,000 metres to give a clear indication signal, and at a wave length of 22,000 metres to give caution signal."

CROSLEY
Over 500,000 loud speakers will have been laid aside in favor of this radio wonder within the next few months.
Headphone units at the base of a horn have at best been but a makeshift. Attached to a paper cone they are but poor imitations of the Musicone.
Crosley engineers have developed a new idea in reproduction mechanism, and Crosley production experts have devised methods of manufacture that give it to the world at a fraction of its comparative value.
MUSICONE
CROSLEY RECEIVERS

This marvelous speaker is uncanny in its accurate reproduction of all tones. Highest notes are sweet and clear. Lowest bass is resonant and true.
It amazes. Compare it with any other speaker at any price. Thousands have; which gives the reason for the passing of so many old type horns.
No adjustments or batteries needed. Its capacity for volume is greater than any demand you will ever put upon it.
It is a thing of beauty in appearance. Superior in its service to the ear. It pleases the eye no less.

Temple Cut Out of Rock

ELLORA, British India, contains a unique temple cut entirely out of rock, both inside and outside. It is about eighty feet high, and is elaborately carved. It was made before the year 1000 A. D.

This Day in History

THIS is the anniversary of the death, in 1823, of Edmund Cartwright, the inventor of the power loom. In 1809 the British Government granted him $50,000, as his patents brought him very little money.

PIMPERNEL AND ROSEMARY

A Story of Love and Mystery That Bares the Heart of the Chief Plotter

out of all this only two words had penetrated Rose-rain—"considerable delay." What did that mean? ' the guard, but he only shook his head. ne else on the train?" Rose-oke in curtly. "What does Jasper? There must be other passengers on the train. Where have they gone to?"

Jasper put the question to the guard.

"The last of the passengers got out at this station, gracious lady. When it was known that the line was blocked this side of the frontier, no one took a ticket further than Sot."

"How do you mean? When was it known that the line was blocked?"

"Before we left Cluj, gracious lady, and so——"

"But they sold us tickets to Budapest, and said nothing about a breakdown," Rosemary exclaimed. And then she turned to her husband: "Jasper, tell me, is this man a fool or a liar, or am I half-witted? You took our tickets to Budapest. Did the man at the ticket-office say anything to you about a block on the line?"

"No," Jasper replied, "he did not."

Rosemary, impatient, her nerves on edge, turned again to the guard. "You saw the gracious gentleman's tickets," she said, "when we got into the train. Why didn't you warn us?"

"I thought perhaps the gracious lady and gentleman would only go as far as Sot and sleep there. I thought everyone knew about the landslide, and that every passenger had been warned."

"Can we get a car here that will take us to Hodmezo?"

"Not at this hour, gracious lady."

"Or a vehicle of any sort?"

The guard shook his head. Rosemary could have screamed with impatience until Jasper's quiet voice broke in:

"k, my dear, that by far thing to do will be to let make up a couple of beds nd to try and possess our-patience until the morn-ere is nothing to be done darling, nothing. And, it may only mean a delay ten hours."

Rosemary remained si-ng no further objection, ped some money into the 's hand, and told him to get eds ready. After that he re-d the carriage, and rather dif-ly sat down beside his wife.

So Unlike Herself

feel terribly guilty, dear he said humbly, "but you I don't speak Roumanian very nd when these sort of people away, I don't always under-what they say. And I was anxious about you at Cluj emed so agitated, so unlike f"

you wonder?" Twenty-four delay may mean that Nan-courier will get to London make arrangements before I e time to wire. I must see first, and in the meanwhile—"

"My darling," Jasper put in, with a quick, wearied sigh, "it is not like you to be so illogical. Do you really suppose that events move at such a rate in a newspaper office? There is bound to be delay—and there's ample time for your telegram to reach the Times before the editor has even thought of inserting your articles. Even if we are held up here for twenty-four hours, you can see Elza and send your wire from Hodmezo before Peter Blakeney, or whoever Naniescu's courier happens to be, can possibly have made any arrangements with the Times."

"Of course, dear, of course," Rosemary said, more calmly. "I am stupid tonight. This whole business has got on my nerves, I suppose. I don't seem to know what I am doing."

Beset by Fear

On the narrow bed, Rosemary found it quite impossible to get any rest. Fortunately the door between her compartment and the one which Jasper occupied were closed, so she felt free to fidget, to get up or to lie down as the mood siezed her, to turn on the light to read or to meditate.

She could not help feeling desperately nervous. Jasper, of course, was quite right: there was plenty of time in which to see Elza, and then to send a telegram to London if necessary, so there was nothing in a few hours' delay to worry about. Nevertheless she, who had always prided herself on independence and level-headness, felt a strange kind of foreboding.

She forced herself into quietude, deliberately kept her eyes closed and her body still.

There was no denying it; the fear that beset her was on account of her coming interview with Elza Maurus' attitude had been strange even abnormal, and it was consequent on a letter from Elza. And Rosemary, though she had not owned it to herself before, felt a growing conviction that Elza's lofty patriotism had given way at last to mother-love.

Perhaps she knew that Rosemary's articles had fallen into Naniescu's hands, perhaps she and Peter had actually been in collusion over the theft, perhaps—perhaps—— There was no end to conjecture, and no limit to Rosemary's dread of what the next four-and twenty hours would bring

Another Day to Wait

She got up in the early dawn made what sketchy toilet the limited accommodation allowed, an' went into the open. The little station deserted; only the two soldiers were still there on duty at the exit door. Rosemary looked up and down the line. Her eyes searched the landscape for a chateau—now a prison for political offenders—where Philip and Anna were detained

But there was no large building in sight, and presently Rosemary caught sight of Jasper, some way up the line, walking toward her in company with a man, who probably was the station-master.

At sight of Rosemary, Jasper hastened to meet her, while the man kept at a respectful distance.

"What news?" Rosemary cried eagerly.

Jasper appeared dejected. "Not very good, I am afraid," he said "The station-master here tells me that he has been advised that the line will take the whole of the day to clear—probably more."

"Very well, then," Rosemary said resolutely, "we must get a car."

"Impossible, my dear; you can't get across if the road is blocked."

"All the roads in Transylvania are not blocked, I imagine," Rosemary retorted drily. Then she called to the station-master: "I want," she said, "to get to Hodmezo today. Can I get a car anywhere in Sot?"

Caught in a Net

"Never mind about the landslide. There are other roads in Transylvania besides this one. I can go by a roundabout way, but I can get there somehow if I have a car. Or," she added impatiently, seeing that the man was looking very dubious, "a conveyance of any sort, I don't care what it is."

"Alas! gracious lady, that is just the trouble. The soldiers were here yesterday, and they commandeered all the horses and bullocks for military purposes."

The man was full of apologies and explanations, but somehow Rosemary had the impression that he lied. Her brain was at work trying to find a way to combat this net of intrigue that was hemming her in. She was quite sure that the man was lying—that Naniescu had ordered these ignorant yokels to tell the lies that suited him.

She, Rosemary, Lady Tarkington, a British subject, could not be held up at the frontier, of course, but there could be a landslide, a block on the line, no conveyance available horses commandeered by the military, two, three, perhaps four days' delay while Naniescu's courier was speeding to London with Rosemary's manuscript and her letter to the editor asking for early publication

She turned with some impatience to Jasper

"What shall I do?"

"Accept the inevitable," he replied. "I understand that there is quite a clean little hotel in the place, and twenty-four hour' delay is not very serious, is it?"

"It would not be," she admitted, "if it were not prolonged."

"It can't be prolonged indefinitely."

"Over mountain passes?" he queried, with a smile.

But she only gave a scornful shrug. "Accept the inevitable?" How little he knew her. The more she saw difficulties ahead, the more she felt ready for a fight. Time was still in her favor. Hodmezo was not far with its telegraph service, and Naniescu's power did not extend beyond the frontier.

Always supposing that Elza did wish her to wire.

Rosemary thought things over for a moment or two; then she said to Jasper: "Very well! I'll possess myself in patience for twenty-four hours. Will you see about rooms at the hotel? And I suppose this man will see about our luggage being taken across?"

Is Romance Dead?

DRAWN BY POPINI

Copyright, 1925, by King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain rights reserved.

NO more romance? Why this old earth's full of it, and you don't have to go to picturesque Spain to find it, either. It's right beside you, if your eyes will only see it. Maybe it's just next door, or waiting 'round the corner, or perhaps it may be the very next desk to yours in the office. Romance, my dear, is in your heart.

If you look you'll find it in the soft petals of the rose, in the clickety-clack of your typewriter—even in the rattle of the old flivver. Romance lurks where you least expect to find it. It's elusive, though—like a will-o-the-wisp when you search for it, it's always just a little ahead. But when you least expect it, lo! it's waiting for you. So be on the watch that you don't overlook it, for once beyond your grasp, it's hard to find again.—POPINI.

MAKING OF A HUSBAND

By Anne Lisle

WHEN my preparations were far enough along, I dressed myself as elaborately as if half a dozen guests were coming, and then started dinner going with the idea of serving at 7.20.

Everything went off according to schedule. Jim arrived at 7.20, hugged me, declared himself as hungry as a lord, changed his collar and washed his hands and then came to table with a keen look of anticipation on his face.

He ate the first course of elaborately-prepared appetizers voraciously and without an air of knowing what he was eating. I tried not to be hurt by his distrait appreciation and to content myself with the fact that he had fairly "licked the platter clean." But I did want a little praise for my daintiness, instead of mere appreciation of the feast of plenty.

"Why do you look so queer?" Jim asked as he cut himself the second wing.

"I didn't know I looked queer," I said almost huffily.

Jim put down his knife and fork and eyed me keenly through narrow eyes.

"You look like a bride of about two months' experience," he said.

"Nice?" I queried with a little quaver in my voice.

"Perfect," was Jim's answer as he came around the table to kiss me. But why the glad rags?" he asked a moment later. "Expecting company?"

Now, who?" I laughed.

"That's right. We don't know a soul around here," commented Jim, returning to his side of the table and continuing to eat with an air of honest interest in food, and almost complete indifference as to its quality, so long as there was enough of it.

Afterward I wondered why I said nothing of Nicholas Perry and his odd visit. But without excusing myself or considering any motive but the truth, I realized that I actually forgot Mr. Perry for the time being.

I was so absorbed in my disappointment over Jim's calm acceptance of my wonderful feast and gala appearance that I couldn't think of anything else. I tried not to be petty or "typically feminine," but I couldn't help being hurt almost to tears. And then as he took a second large helping of cheese cake, Jim said suddenly:

"Gosh, that was a meal fit for a king! And I'll bet you did every darned thing yourself."

"Of course," I smiled, feeling as if the sun were out from behind the clouds.

"You ought to have some one in to help you," Jim murmured half to himself. "But tonight, at least, you have someone to help you. I'll do the dishes."

"You're tired—" I began, but Jim cut in with a determined:

"You can't do the dishes in that yellow thingumajigger. You'd spoil it."

"I'll change," I volunteered.

Jim came over and laid his hands on my shoulders. He forced me down in my chair, pushed chair and contents back from the table, and then lifted me out and carried me over to the couch, where he deposited me hastily and firmly.

QUEEN'S COUNSEL

by Marie
Queen of Roumania

HORSES.

I AM a bold rider, so the legend arose that I rode my horses to death. Almost more did I resent having this said than if it had been said that I beat my children.

All of us who love horses will understand this. I was brought up to love them and it is a love that has lasted through life. I have the same thrill today as I had forty years ago when I start out for a ride.

HER MAJESTY MARIE QUEEN OF ROUMANIA

And each horse had to be treated in a different way; each had his character, his nerves, his tricks, his likes and dislikes, his limitations.

How well do I remember all the horses that passed through my life, big and small, tame or wild, from our first little pony who was called Tommy and that we four girls rode in turns!

Now that I am no more so young, and can spend more money than I could formerly, I try to get a horse with comfortable paces and without vice. My people would resent my having myself smashed up. They would say, "A queen of fifty had better remain at home . . ."

But I want to ride! It fills me like nothing else with the joy of life—but I make the concession nowadays of riding a well trained horse. In my youth nothing gave me such delight as riding a wild horse, not yet broken

I had steely nerves and good hands, but I never rode my horses to death!

What friends they have always been through life, and how grateful I have felt for the way they gave me their strength. It is pleasant to feel gratitude even toward a horse. All horse-lovers will understand this feeling of gratitude towards those beautiful and powerful creatures who serve us and teach us and allow us to conquer them with our will.

ADVICE TO LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

None in the world was ever more hurt than I am. The young man I love has a very jealous disposition.

He became furious with me because I wasn't looking his way while riding a short distance on the train. I shall never forget the names he called me. Nor is that all. He twisted my arm until I couldn't hold back the tears.

Mother will not encourage or discourage me. But she says we must all forgive and forget. I am thinking of the future. Am I lucky in finding him out now? What shall I do? CURLY

YOUR mother is right. Forgiving and forgetting are necessary for us all if we are to be happy and loved.

Assure your friend that if he behaves again in such a violently rude and ill-tmepered manner you won't feel safe in numbering him among your friends. And, of course, you'll have to let him understand plainly—though you can be very friendly in explaining this—that you are free to enjoy the companionship and conversation of all your young men friends.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By Helen Rowland.

Helen Rowland

A WOMAN is often a woman—but a loyal wife is a man's best press agent.

A loyal wife is one who spends half her time trying to convince the world that her husband is a wonder and the other half trying to convince him that he's NOT.

A loyal wife will always rise promptly to her husband's defense in an argument, a quarrel or a point of judgment—even though she may go home afterward and tell him how "unreasonable" he is.

"The King—right or wrong" is her slogan, in public—even though in private she may be impelled to urge him "For heaven's sake, to use a little more common sense!"

A loyal wife always stoutly boasts that her husband's motives, acts, and judgment are unassailable — even though she sometimes wonders privately "why he DID it."

She will valiantly maintain the allegiance to the stand he has taken in the City Council or in the community feud—even while she privately implores him to be less pig-headed.

She will swear without a quiver that he "never touches anything stronger than water"—and then go home and sniff his breath and gaze into the whites of his eyes, to see if she is right.

She will "tell the world" that he is the best husband on earth—even though there are sinister moments when she can't help reminding him that "she might have done better."

She will lie to anybody and everybody to protect him from the result of his folly—and then lie to HIM in order not to shatter his illusions or shake his faith in himself.

She will stick to him through thick and [illegible] desert him through thin—and [illegible] that he will TRY to look [illegible] like the glorified picture she [illegible] of [illegible]

DAILY SHORT STORY

LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS

By Arthur Cunningham

JOHN KINGSLEY heard the doctor's voice as through from afar. "[illegible] "A few weeks, a [illegible] Mr. Kingsley, and [illegible] the loss of sight [illegible] it?"

[illegible] suddenness of it left [illegible] wordless. At twenty [illegible] life seemed to him [illegible] worthwhile to lose [illegible] sight, the glory of sun and [illegible] the beauty of the [illegible] and green woods, the sight of [illegible] he loved.

When the doctor had gone and Snell had switched on the lights, Kingsley walked restlessly up and down the library. It seemed beyond belief. He thought of the blind beggars in the streets, dreadful, staring things that held forth a cup and cried whiningly for alms. Often he had given them money, but never with a thought for the horror of their plight.

Had Wealth

At least he had wealth. But was that not worse? To have to earn his daily bread would mean interest, activity, something to relieve the pain. He would be denied that. He would have to sit like an invalid or be led cautiously about, always in the shadow, always, always!

Then he thought of her. What would it mean to Claire who loved him so, whom he adored with all the passion that man can feel for that which is small and pure and beautiful? Pretty, laughing Claire Wellsley. Young and filled with the joy, the quickness of life, could she share his misery?

Claire must not become his wife! Better anything for her than that through a mistaken and pitying loyalty she should come to him in his blindness.

Coolly he began to think of means to free her without her knowing why. He must hide his affliction from her. If she learned of it, nothing would keep her away from him. When his night came, he would go away forever and wait out alone the dark years that stretched before him.

But how to end her love? How to make her, if it might be done, hate him and wish to be free?

With consummate cleverness and a desire to destroy her regard for him beyond power of revival, he began that night his campaign of renunciation.

For the first time in many years, he drank heavily. He went to her, but instead of anger and recrimination, only pity and tenderness met him. Her tears added to his misery. Clearly it would take much to shake her love; only a cataclysm would serve to uproot it. It must be done through a woman.

There were those who would be happy to see him parted from Claire, happier if it were done with disgrace and ignominy. Elkin would be glad, John knew. Elkin had loved Claire long before she had met John Kingsley. He would marry Claire if he had the chance. He would be good to her. Well, the chance would soon be given.

Stayed Away

For several days he did not go near his fiancee. She telephoned. He answered shortly, refused to give any explanation other than that he was "having a good time." He heard a sob from the other end of the wire.

When he put the receiver down his face wore an expression of agony. His soul cried out against this horror. For a moment he thought he would have to give up and tell her all. Then he cursed himself for a coward.

But Kingsley was not through. It must be done and done irrevocably, this act of estrangement.

In the fulfillment of his design, Mrs. Seymour Brevort loomed like a good angel or an evil one. Mrs. Seymour Brevort openly admired Kingsley, and her ethics were not those of a marital paragon. Besides, her husband was a rat whom a few thousands would placate. They were not nice people. Kingsley was not looking for nice people.

So it was when Seymour Brevort and Stanley Elkin entered the Brevort apartment one evening, in answer to an anonymous tip, that they found the pretty Mrs. Brevort in John Kingley's arms.

Thus was it consummated. Elkins would see to the publicity.

Kingsley's ring came back the next day with never a word, and something died, something that had been dying by agonizing seconds in his torn heart.

Soon now darkness would come. Dimmer and more crepuscular grew the light. Before it forever faded, John Kingsley penned his swan song:

His Swan Song

Claire darling,—

You are free now to find in some good man the happiness I could never have given you. One favor alone I ask: that when you think of me, you will recall only what I was before I went wrong.

I am going away. We shall not see each other again. In my heart you live forever, little Claire. May life smile upon you and brightness be on your path; mine lies in shadows and night.

John Kingsley.

Claire did not understand that letter, but she wept over it. She knew the man who had penned it. Her one desire was to go to him. Then sane thought came to tell her that she was not wanted. He had shown himself unworthy of her love. He had not even asked for forgiveness. Her face was wet with tears she could not keep back.

Even so had Kingsley known she would suffer. Her pain was added to his. He was now a blind man.

With the faithful Snell, his valet for many years, Kingsley settled in Santa Barbara, a continent removed from her who was still near him in his loneliness.

Often in the afternoons Snell would take him out. Sometimes they went to the church and there Kingsley would sit in the cool quiet and listen to the music of the organ-loft or the twittering of birds outside the portico.

Wondered About Claire

Something like contentment came to him at such moments. He wondered if Claire had found happiness. He thought of her with regret though he felt that his sacrifice had been right. He was sure that her sorrow would be cured with time and her love be given elsewhere. His was sealed within by those black curtains, to dwell there always. No bitterness was with it; only the joy of knowing that he loved her.

The church was not far removed from Kingsley's rooms. Soon he could find his way there alone. With his stick he would feel the pavement and the steps. He began to go confidently.

One afternoon the organ was playing so sweetly that, lost in the beauty of the mellow piping, Kingsley slept.

He awoke to hear the music still in his ears. There seemed to be a faint bustle all about him. He could not know that the seats were filled or that many people waited expectantly.

He felt restless and wished that Snell would come as he had been told to do. With the overmastering impatience of the afflicted, he decided to go. The church was quiet now. There seemed to be no one in the aisle. Gropingly he found his way out of the pew and started towards the door.

Suddenly the soft prelude of the organ burst into glorious harmony. It was the wedding march. Up the aisle on her brother's arm came Claire Wellsley. Elkin waited at the altar.

The blind Kingsley stood alone in her path. A look of piteous helplessness on his face, his hand outstretched, feeling; his cane tapping the floor, he walked towards her.

Kissed His Hand

In the church was silence. The few who knew seemed to communicate the awful drama of the situation to the strangers.

For a moment they stood [illegible] Claire left her brother's arm [illegible] Then went to the blindman. She [illegible] him and oblivious of time and place [illegible] seemed took his hand in hers and [illegible] ce. She [illegible] before them all. [illegible] kissed it.

There was no wedding that [illegible]

A week later the darkness [illegible] that day, and into Kingsley's life came [illegible] lifted greater light than that of [illegible] moon or stars, a warmer [illegible] than that of blue waters and [illegible] beauty woods . . . the light of a [illegible] great woman's love and devotion.

GOOD MORNING, MISS CINDERS,—I'M COLL M. GRABBER, PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT, AND WE WANT TO TELL THE WORLD ABOUT YOU!
YOU CAN WRITE MY PAST ON YOUR THUMB NAIL, MY PRESENT ON YOUR CUFF, AND AS FOR THE FUTURE — YOU'D BETTER SEE A WEATHER PROPHET!
YOU CAN BE THE ARCHITECT OF YOUR OWN FUTURE, BUT I'LL BUILD YOU A PAST THAT WILL MAKE A CASTLE IN SPAIN LOOK LIKE A SQUATTER'S SHANTY. WHAT WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE — A MEMBER OF THE RUSSIAN NOBILITY OR A SOCIETY DEBUTANTE? EITHER OF THOSE WILL GO OVER WELL.
AFTER LOOKING OVER YOUR SAMPLES, I DON'T BELIEVE I WANT ANY PUBLICITY TODAY.
DON'T BE SILLY! PUBLICITY IS THE BALLOON THAT LIFTS YOU TO FAME! GIVE ME A DICTIONARY, A TYPEWRITER AND A LITTLE CO-OPERATION AND I'LL MAKE YOU BETTER KNOWN THAN A BREAKFAST FOOD!
IF YOU MUST WRITE SOMETHING, MAKE IT THE TRUTH, NO MATTER HOW HARD IT MAY BE! SAY THAT I'M JUST A LITTLE GIRL FROM NOWHERE THAT'S GOING SOMEPLACE — AND NOBODY BUT LADY LUCK KNOWS WHERE THAT IS!

STEP-WORD PUZZLE

(PATENT APPLIED FOR)

Copyright, 1925, King Features Syndicate, Inc. Great Britain Rights Reserved.

(Reproduction of this title "STEP-WORD" or of the [illegible] or pattern for this puzzle is [illegible] King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

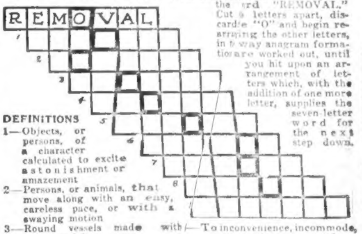
By ARTHUR WYNNE,

Originator of the Modern Cross-Word Puzzle.

It took the cross-word puzzle nearly thirteen years to reach the height of its popularity. Here is where the step-word puzzle, in a new form, sets out to break the cross-word's record.

You will notice that the letter "O" on the top step is in a heavy bordered square. Discard the "O," rearrange the other six letters and one more, which you must find yourself, in such a way that they spell a seven-letter word corresponding to the definition given below. When you have found that word, letter it in on the first step down, discard the letter which happens to fall in the heavy-bordered square, and figure out the word which belongs on step 2. Then so on down to the bottom step.

The best way to work out these new-style step-word puzzles is to take a four or five inch strip of paper and letter across it in capitals the word "REMOVAL." Cut the letters apart, discard the "O" and begin rearranging the other letters, in the way anagram formations are worked out, until you hit upon an arrangement of letters which, with the addition of one more letter, supplies the seven-letter word for the next step down.



DEFINITIONS

1—Objects, or persons, of a character calculated to excite astonishment or amazement
2—Persons, or animals, that move along with an easy, careless pace, or with a swaying motion
3—Round vessels made with staves and hoops
4—The keeper of a place where horses, or cattle, are lodged and fed
5—To inconvenience, incommode, worry, or otherwise perplex
6—A large, delicious, and sometimes indigestible, marine crustacean used as food
7—One who fails to be convinced very readily
8—One who dresses in bad taste, or whose manners are offensive
9—Divests of any ceremonial garment, cloak or robe

Resinol heals deep burn

Has used it for years and never known it to fail

Bolton, Mass., Jan. 22:—"In 1919 I burned my foot severely. Every time I moved the burn would open and for six weeks I tried various treatments which did no good—the burn simply would not heal. I was a nurse before I was married and had used Resinol Ointment and knew it to be wonderful, so I decided to try it on this burn. I had used only one jar when my burn was completely healed. I have used Resinol Ointment for years and have never known it to fail—it's great stuff." (Signed) Mrs. Joseph E. Siggins.

FOXY GRANDPA'S BEDTIME STORY

By Foxy Grandpa

"LET'S get out on that rock and look at the view," suggested Bobby as we climbed up a high mountain out in Montana.

How still it was and how restful. I thought as I sat there and looked at the great mountains what unimportant little creatures we were. Big mountains always make me feel that way.

Very gently Bunny pulled my sleeve. I turned around and there he was with his paw up to his mouth. He didn't even say "Hark," but simply pointed.

I looked to where his paw directed and then I gently pulled Bobby's arm which was raised to let go another stone.

We never moved a muscle, for there on a crag right across a deep ravine from us was an antelope. And beside her was a fawn—her baby, and the cutest little fellow you ever saw in all your life.

The mother was lying down and the baby was frisking around her just the way a kitten plays around its mother.

Then it happened. I don't know where he came from or how long he had been hungrily looking at the pair, perhaps for a long while, and we had been too busy to even glance up at the sky.

But a tremendous golden eagle came very near the antelope and the baby and commenced circling around over their heads.

The mother grew nervous and looked around to see where to jump with her baby, but before she could do anything the great bird swooped down on them and made for the baby.

"Foxy Grandpa!" shouted Bobby. "Help her! Help her!"

But there was nothing to do. We couldn't get across to the crag where they were, and I didn't have my gun with me, because in this case, although I would have tried not to hit the magnificent bird, I would most certainly have shot at him. Why hadn't I put my gun on my hip, when I started up that mountain? I had left it in the car.

Then the battle started. The eagle rose again and then swooped down towards the baby.

For quite a while this desperate fight lasted and finally the eagle flew off, slowly and we noticed that one of his wings drooped and fluttered lamely.

"Good!" we cried.

"Foxy Grandpa," said Bunny, "Let me get into your pocket. That eagle might have seen me and will tell his mate. I'd do just as well for their supper as a baby antelope."

UNITED DRUG ADDS TO RETAIL STORES

United Drug Company, through its retail subsidiary, Liggett Drug Stores, has acquired several chains of retail stores on the Pacific Coast, aggregating 23 units. These are being paid for in cash. They will be taken over and placed under Liggett management during November.

In addition, the company has acquired a number of leases of good locations, some of which it will occupy immediately, and others as soon as it can be arranged for present tenants to vacate. It is also understood the company is to purchase two buildings to secure prominent locations for Liggett stores.

Investment in this development on the Pacific Coast—which the company has been pushing for some months—will total something over $5,000,000. A retail business, however, will thus be established in the far Western States that will more than offset the investment.

United Drug Company, the manufacturing entity, will not suffer any loss in sales by reason of discontinuance of its relations with its former agents, the Owl Drug Company.

TEXTILE TRADE DOES WELL, DUN'S REPORTS

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston: All branches of the textile trade are doing well, and the activity in the shoe and leather trades is contributing to the improving conditions. Increased confidence is manifesting itseuf in a disposition in many lines to make commitments farther ahead.

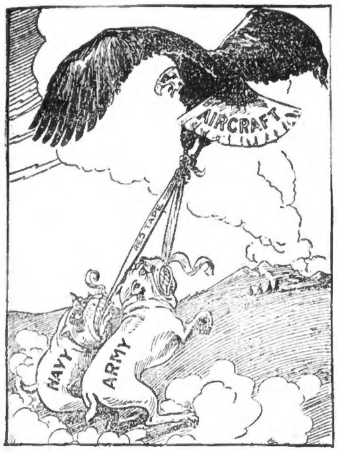
"LET GO!"

Let These Animals Attend to THEIR Work and Let the Bird FLY



This illustrates admirably the aircraft situation, the American flying bird held down by red tape.

John Baer, formerly a wheat farmer in North Dakota and a Congressman from that State, made this picture. It shows the situation in our aircraft exactly.

The American eagle would like to fly as high and as fast as other flying nations. But army and navy red tape hold him to the ground. Bulldogs are well chosen as emblems of our army and navy, for they are courageous animals, and nowhere on earth is there an army or navy more courageous than the United States army and navy.

But bulldogs, admirable fighting creatures, DON'T understand flying. They have specialized too long in their work on the ground to have intelligent understanding of work in the air.

If Uncle Sam had two first-class fighting bulldogs to guard his front yard and one splendid eagle to fly and protect him above, would he put the dogs in charge of the eagle? Would he allow them to hang on to the eagle, as these dogs are hanging on to United States aircraft, barking, "Don't go so high! Don't go so fast!"

Let the respectable, courageous bulldogs of the army and navy attend to THEIR kind of fighting, let somebody that UNDERSTANDS flying deal with the aircraft eagle, and GIVE HIM A CHANCE.

This cartoon by Mr. Baer is published in Labor, the ably edited organ of the American Federation of Labor, published in Washington, D. C.

Labor men, more than any other class, are interested in a good fighting and commercial air fleet for the United States.

For labor makes up the backbone—80 per cent.—of the soldiers that volunteer or that are drafted in war.

If this country should be taken by surprise, cities and factories bombed, labor men would supply the large percentage of "casualties."

And all Americans alike, laborers, mechanics, professional men and capitalists, are interested in a well-defended nation.

Want Your Boy to Know?

Send Him Where He Can Learn HOW

A writer in the Musical Courier tells of Mirecort, a little town in France, famous for the production of excellent violins. In that town skilled violin makers produce violins, entirely by hand work, of course, after the manner of the old Italian school of violin making known to all through the name of one workman, Stradivarius.

And the best craftsman there, Amade Dieudonne, slowly producing beautiful instruments, cannot supply the demand. But, being an artist as well as a workman, HE DOES NOT ALLOW HIMSELF TO BE HURRIED.

Mr. Lucas, who writes of Mirecort, was surprised to find among the apprentices, working under the direction of the French master artisans, a young American named Rembert Wurlitzer, who had already produced, with his own hands, violins of exceptionally fine tone.

The American young man in that French community of artistic workmen represented American common sense. His father, head of one of the greatest concerns making and manufacturing musical instruments in this country, wanted his son to know the difference between a first-class instrument and a poor one. So he sent him three thousand miles off to Mirecort in France to learn the difference, BY ACTUAL WORK.

That's a good suggestion for other American fathers. If they want their sons to do something worth while, let them have the sons go where they can LEARN HOW.

It may be to a far-off village of violin makers; it may be to a bank downtown.

For thousands of young American boys and girls the best place TO LEARN HOW, to achieve success in the life of American competition, is a modern department store, big or little.

In a department store, in your own city, your boy or girl can learn the most important lesson in human life, HOW TO DEAL WITH OTHER HUMAN BEINGS.

All life work is SALESMANSHIP in some form—it is persuading others that what you say is TRUE, and that it interests THEM.

In the big modern store all kinds of GOODS are sold to all kinds of PEOPLE. The young man working in such an institution, with eyes and ears open and senses alert, all his energies bent on SERVICE, can change himself from a small clerk into a successful man and earn a living at the same time.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THE latest thing in society is the divorcee's coming out party. A divorcee is a young lady who used to be married but excused herself.

JUST because she came out while she was single is no reason that she can't come out again after she's married.

ONE woman always makes a debut every time her alimony stops.

SHE gives a party to let the men know that she's in the market for some separate maintenance.

THE affair is usually a dance and instead of using a program she has the gentlemen write her name in their check books.

AND at the end of the evening she balances her dances.

ONE fellow had her name on twenty checks. The next morning he stopped payment on them.

THAT taught her a lesson. She won't even sit in a draft now unless it's certified.

DIVORCE debuts are nothing new. One dame has been coming out for thirty years.

SHE'S so used to it that she can come out in the dark.

SHE made her first appearance two years before Santa Claus.

THE only difference between her and Kris Kringle is that Santa Claus gives and she takes.

SHE'S been coming out so long that she's worn out three ball rooms.

SHE'S no longer after alimony. What she wants now is a pension.

THE men smile at her with a check book and she answers them with a fountain pen.

THE last guy she married was so feeble that he fell over in the church. But she didn't care as long as he didn't lose his balance in the bank.

SHE'S had eighteen husbands in nineteen years. It would have been even but one of them got away.

ALONGSIDE of her, Peggy Joyce is an amateur.

DEBUTS cost money and some women have to come out three or four times before they can get their money back.

WOMEN AS PORTERS

By Temple Manning

"DARJEELING" is a name to conjure with, to inspire the thoughts of poets. And the other name of this magic city of India is equally entrancing. It is called, "Place of the Clouds."

The name is justifiable, too, for the city rests in a sea of clouds. In the morning, they are light fluffy bits of clouds. As the day grows older they expand into great billowing waves. Sometimes they form a deep, gray fog that almost smothers the city.

The town itself is a cheerful, red-roofed affair, built in a semi-circle. The houses are of stucco and concrete, elaborately decorated with tracings and ornaments of various sorts.

Traveling about Darjeeling is no such simple matter as it is in those cities which boast of trolleys and trains. There is, of course, a train that takes up up to the city in the hills, but it is not what one might call an express train. It usually travels about twenty miles an hour, puffing and panting, stopping and starting.

But the traveling about the city itself is accomplished in rickshas drawn by three or four coolies. The rickshas are clumsy and heavy and it is quite a task to draw them about.

But by far the most unusual sight, to Western eyes, is that of the women and even children, who carry heavy trunks and baggage of various sorts up the mountainside on their backs. When you descend from your train at Ghoom, there is a run of four miles into Darjeeling. At the station of Ghoom, porters of the feminine sex, pounce upon the baggage and load it onto their backs.

This city of the mountains and the clouds, with its impressive setting of natural beauty, is a meeting place for the English, the Swiss, the Mongolians and the Indians. On Sunday mornings, one may meet people of all of these nationalities thronging the bazaar, in exotic costumes. The scene is colorful and brilliant enough to fit in amidst the magnificence of the natural scenery.

No Anonymous Communications Will Be Considered.

Loses Citizenship

To the Friend of the People:

Please answer this in your column.

Does an Englishwoman when she marries an American in England lose her citizenship and become one without a country?

How long does it take for her to become an American citizen?

MRS. STELLA A. SANBORN,
Mt. Vernon Street, Boston.

(Yes. If she wishes to recover her English nationality she must apply for naturalization. She is an alien after marriage. One year's residence in America is necessary before she can qualify as an American citizen.—Ed.)

Esperanto

To the Friend of the People:

Is there any school in Boston where one can take a course in learning Esperanto?

JOHN K. KNOWLES,
Bowdoin Street, Boston.

(The Boston Normal Art School has such a course.—Ed.)

Whiskers in England

To the Friend of the People:

The war against whiskers and tooth brush moustaches referred to in your column is going on in England. In fact, the agitation against hair on the face is more keen there than in this country.

One speaker recently appeared in Hyde Park with full-blown-whiskers and he was hooted from his rostrum by a motley crowd. This information I have just received in a letter from the old country.

The English side whiskers, according to my friend abroad, have gone. I thought your readers would like to know how whiskers are getting along in England.

MARTIN C. SOUTHWORTH,
Westfield.

Beggars Disappearing

To the Friend of the People:

What has become of all the street beggars in Boston? Where have they gone?

When in Boston before I saw many of these, but upon my last visit the streets seem to be shorn of them. I believe many of these beggars are sincere. Some of them are imposters. Has Boston sent them to Chicago, where I found a nest of them? I never pass a beggar on the street but I think that may be my lot some day. One should be merciful to these creatures.

MICHAEL L. LANIGAN,
21 75th Street, New York.

Etiquette of Eating

To the Friend of the People:

Do people in Boston eat with a fork in their right hand?

This is what I heard Dr. Campbell Morgan say in an address made here.

You go into a restaurant in any part of Boston and keep your eyes open. You will see more people handling a fork in their left hand than in their right hand.

I wonder where Dr. Morgan got the impression that Bostonians use a fork in their right hand. Some do. I have seen many eat with a knife here instead of a spoon.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY

ON "BEING LOYAL."

MEN seem to be LOYAL to EACH OTHER
Quite NATURALLY.
How WONDERFUL!
WOMEN are SOMETIMES
Loyal to each other, TOO,
But it GENERALLY takes
A bit of an EFFORT.
Women USUALLY are more
PERSONAL than MEN
And SELDOM LOSE
Sight of their own
EGO.
Of course, MEN have
Egos, too, most of them,
LARGER than women.
But they FORGET them
Occasionally and ACT
NATURALLY.
AN INTOXICATED man seems to arouse brotherly concern
From ALL MEN,
But WOMEN'S reactions are ENTIRELY DIFFERENT.
MEN can easily be LOYAL
To a CAUSE or a
PRINCIPLE, but a WOMAN
PREFERS to be loyal to SOMETHING she can SEE AND UNDERSTAND,
Such as A MAN, and
HER OWN MAN for preference.

THAT LONG ARMY OF YOUR ANCESTORS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

HAVE you ever thought of the long army of ancestor at whose head you march?

You have two parents. Multiplying back twenty generations your ancestors number 1,048,576.

Less than a thousand years ago there were over a million of you.

The procession would be almost six hundred miles long.

When you walk to town and back a couple of miles away at a moderate rate, the last ancestor gets home five days later.

Picture that long line stretching away.

Ancient bearded Saxons, fair-haired Norsemen or dark-skinned Latins, the line may run the whole gamut of races and fashions. Princes and beaux, and blustering seamen, poets and plowmen, the kind and the cruel, the haughty and the humble, the upright and the devious, all are in the line.

All these many men who long ago were dust form your army.

You march at the head of the procession.

You are the commander.

Where will you lead?

Will you be master of your army, or will they find you weak, and, overpowering you, make you their slave?

Napoleon, a genius in things military, said:

"I have one counsel for you . . . Be master!"

Someone has said: "Each one of us is an omnibus in which all of our ancestors ride."

An authority on heredity, Albert Edward Wiggan, says we cannot improve the actual traits of humanity.

These come down to us and cannot be changed.

But, he says, the way the human race can be improved is to increase the number of human beings who possess the good traits and decrease those who possess the bad traits.

This sane statement of the case applies to the individual as well as the race.

You cannot alter the past, you cannot change the constituents of your army. You cannot affect what you inherit.

But you can command the hereditary army you lead and not be led by it.

You can put the good traits in positions of command and bad traits in subservient places.

You can choose from your army counsellors who are wise and brave instead of those who are mean and cowardly.

You can lead your army and you can lead it upward.

WONDERFUL LANGUAGE OF THE EYE

By Garrett P. Serviss,
Noted Astronomer and Writer on on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

THE eye is the great educator. It is so wonderful in its work that from time immemorial men have ascribed mystic powers to the eye.

It not only gathers knowledge for its possessor, but it dispenses knowledge from him to others. You can generally read in a man's eye what he is and what he is thinking. It is the window of his soul, and he is so well aware of it that if he is trying to conceal anything he first of all endeavors to draw a curtain over his eyes.

It is an anatomical, and not simply a poetical, statement that the eye is a window to the brain. A nerve, called the "optic" nerve, from a Greek word meaning sight, starts directly out of the brain behind the eye, passes through a hole in the skull and spreads over the back of the eye in the form of a screen, called the "retina," from the Latin word rete, "a net." The ball of the eye is composed of transparent lenses, which focus the light on the retina, just as lenses of glass might do.

So the outer world is pictured on the screen that the brain spreads at the back of the eye, and the brain sees it and interprets it to the intelligence.

This arrangement is so simple and yet so marvellous in the perfection of its details that it is no wonder that strange beliefs have grown up about the eye. Neither by words nor by actions can a man make his meaning so instantaneously clear and effective as by a glance of his eye. An uplifted fist is not so terrible as a threatening eye.

There is, perhaps, truth in the old belief that a courageous man can cow a wild beast by fixing unflinching eyes upon it. The next time you meet an ugly dog stand still and look him steadily in the eye. The chances are very great that in a few moments he will drop his own eyes, put his tail between his legs and skulk away. A two-legged dog will do the same thing.

The language of the eye is wonderful. It can say anything wit incomparably greater force than th tongue. It is the brain's most direct line of action upon the oute world.

The whole man speaks throug the eye. The entire force of his personality is behind it. The centra fire of his nature flashes through i

People in general do not sufficiently cultivate the eye as an instrument of expression and a dynamic weapon (dynamis, power). Nothing else can strike so hard a blow or exercise so winning an influence. Most persons use their eyes only to see outside, not to reveal their inner selves, or to speak a language that is beyond words.

A Traveler's Tale.

An American traveler has recorded a curious instance of the instinctive belief of uneducated people in the mystic power of the eye. He happened to have a glass eye, and when he was living in Japan he used to take it out at night and place it in a bowl of water at his bedside. Presently he began to notice the extreme respect with which he was treated by his servants. Then he found that a crowd would frequently gather in the street before his house and stare at it and at him.

Thinking that they might have evil designs, he made inquiries and discovered that his servants had been telling their friends that their master had a magic eye which he took out at night and placed beside his bed to keep watch while he slept!

A book on eyes would be very interesting and very informing. Consider the many-faceted eye of the fly. Its convex surface is covered with so many little lenses that, under a magnifying glass, it resembles a heap of minute gems as the light waves play over it. It is a realization of the dream, which some instrument makers have had, of a telescope composed of a vast number of lenses, all focused at a common point. Such a telescope, if practicable, might be made of enormous dimensions, but, then, it would appear that the lenses of the fly's eye all have different focal points, and the fly sees the surrounding world multiplied into hundreds of juxtaposed images. Perhaps it gains something by that of which we know nothing.

TRIVIAL QUARRELS MAY KILL HOME HAPPINESS

Have you found that it is becoming easier and easier for you and your life partner to disagree?

Every time he or she makes a statement do you immediately argue against it?

This condition prevailing, you do not always answer kindly, but you wax sarcastic and both become considerably wrought up.

You are not willing to enter into friendly debate but you become loud and emphatic, unjust and illogical if you counter statement.

Thinking back over the years, you can remember when your disagreements and differences of opinion were discussed with a smile or jokingly.

But now there is a mean spirit engendered.

You want to say a few words with such emphasis as to end the discussion, and you only bring on the whirlwind.

The words that come back to you are just as positive and bitter.

You are foolish to allow such a condition to exist in your home.

You are both getting farther and farther away from what your life should be, and happiness is lost over matters too trivial for quarrels.
